

Solon Labels Military Budget Cut 'Invitation To Attack'

WASHINGTON (AP)—Rep. Price (D-Ill.) today termed President Eisenhower's military budget "an invitation for an enemy attack." He called upon Secretary of Defense Wilson to "give re-assurance to the American people that defense was the primary objective" in cutting funds for air power.

And influential Senate Democrats, declaring open warfare on administration military policies, aimed at substituting foreign aid cuts for Air Force economies.

Sen. Russell (D-Ga.) and Sen.

Maybank (D-SC) said they will vote within the appropriations committee to cut back Mutual Security Administration funds while opposing a reduction in aviation funds.

Price, an Armed Services Committee member, suggested that "accountants" in the Bureau of the Budget may have overruled Wilson and ignored the Joint Chiefs of Staff in setting the $36,171,288,000 military budget for the year beginning July 1.

The figure is $5,247,128,000 less than former President Truman recommended. But it includes an increase of more than $1 billion for the Army, largely to finance the Korean War.

Price said $919,134,000 was trimmed from naval aviation, in addition to $5 billion slashed from Air Force funds. He said that made the air power cuts about $6 billion. Eisenhower has said that 60 cents of every defense dollar next year will go to the Air Force and the Navy for air power.

Gen. Hoyt S. Vandenberg, Air Force chief of staff, on his return from a trip to South America, said Monday night he attended a meeting of the National Security Council at which the final decision was made to accept proposed fund cuts.

"I was there to answer questions, but I was not asked for my opinion and did not give it," Vandenberg said. "There I neither approved nor disapproved."

He declined immediate comment on the effect of the cuts.

Sen. Russell joined other Democrats in scoffing at Secretary Wilson's contention that air strength will be built up despite the proposed appropriations slash.

"If Mr. Wilson had found a magic formula by which we can cut our plane building program and still increase our air strength, Congress ought to be told about it," Russell said.

"If he can perform such feats of legerdemain, the logical sequence would be to cut the Air Force requests 10 billion dollars and get twice as much defense."

Maybank said he, for one, isn't going to vote to spend $5.8 billion to supply military and other assistance to U. S. Allies while reducing the amount available to America's own air arm. He said he thinks the MSA program can stand a slash of $2 billion.

Price based his conclusions on a letter from Budget Director Joseph M. Dodge to Wilson, dated May 7. Price said it indicated that Wilson had not shaved enough from the Truman budget to carry out "the administrations stated policies and budget objectives."

The Bureau of the Budget is the President's spokesman on fiscal matters and has the final voice on all budgets before they are sent to Congress.

Price said Dodge's letter raises these questions: "Whether the advice of the Joint Chiefs of Staff has been followed" and "is Secretary Wilson, himself, in full accord with the proposed cuts?"

He added:

"Are we to plan our defense and defense of future generations on the recommendations of accountants, adding machines and computers rather than on the recommendations of men who have spent their entire adult careers in the study of military problems."

"Have we suddenly found out," he asked, "from some mysterious source that Russia also can be covered by penny-pinching efficiency better than it can be by an air force which is equipped to deliver the atomic bomb at any designated target in the world?"

General Assembly Is Given Say In New UN Truce Plan

Soviet Shuns West Bid On Austrian Pact

Moscow Refuses Offer To Attend Parley Set For Wednesday

LONDON (AP)—The Soviet Union has turned down a Western invitation to reopen talks Wednesday on an Austrian independence treaty. President Eisenhower had called for Soviet agreement to such a pact as a sign of the "sincere intent" of Russia's post-Stalin peace talk.

Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Jacob Malik, who also is ambassador to Britain, spurned the Allied offer to reopen the long-stalemate negotiations in a letter to the general secretary of the Big Four's deputy foreign ministers.

The letter was published today in Moscow newspapers and broadcast by Moscow radio.

There was no immediate official reaction to the brusque turnaround in Washington, London or Paris.

Britain on May 11 had asked the other nations concerned with the treaty—the U. S., France and the Soviet Union—to reopen the talks here Wednesday. The deputies have met already 259 times (the last time Feb. 6) during the last five years in unsuccessful efforts to write a treaty which would give Austria complete independence.

Insurance Setup Proposed To End Fire Cost Deadlock

Sagging hopes for early settlement of the city-townships feud over firefighting costs were given a strong shot in the arm Tuesday by a proposal to utilize fire insurance clauses as part of a new arrangement.

The new plan, admittedly with some kinks but hailed as the most promising peace effort outlined so far, was suggested by neutral sources. Apparently it has not yet been placed before city officials or the Rural Township Fire Association, at loggerheads over a rural fire setup since the old one ended May 7.

Leading citizens, both in Circleville and in the eight townships covered by the Association, have hesitated to have their names associated with mediation proposals for fear their motives will be misunderstood in the touchy dispute.

For the same reason, local fire insurance firms have been slow to offer any suggestions toward a solution.

The new proposal would place most of the firefighting costs directly on the individual property owner who finds it necessary to call on the fire department for help. However, supporters of the plan point out the cost would be trivial alongside any individual contract between a rural property owner and the fire department. Several property owners have sought such a contract with the city since the city-association feud began, only to be told it could not legally be done.

UNDER THE new plan, the Association would return its township truck to the city fire station, where it would be operated again by city firemen. A relatively small fund would then be set up by the Association from the township reserves to maintain the truck and pay for its insurance, as before.

Meanwhile, property owners outside the city who want fire protection policies would be notified they can be arranged with any one of the local fire insurance firms. Under provisions described as standard for the fire insurance business, the firms would then pay up to $100 per call for any trip made by the township truck to an insured property. The amount paid would be turned over to the city. It was pointed out that, while coverage could be paid up to $100 per call, a "reasonable rate per call would probably be about half that amount." It was indicated this point could be ironed out later if the plan in general meets favorable reaction.

City Council members some time ago suggested the Association should be willing to pay $40 per call. Under the old arrangement, fire insurance policies were not directly involved.

A scale of rates offered by a local insurance firm shows protection under the new proposal could be had by the individual property owner over a three-year period for $3.75. Protection over a five-year period would be $6.

Major kink to be adjusted in the new proposal hinges on the rule that such insurance could be paid only when the fire "threatens the property." A percentage of calls answered by the township truck have been to extinguish "grass fires" and the like, which may or may not "threaten the property" of the insured rural resident.

HOWEVER, it has been suggested this problem may be solved by placing a fair obligation on the property owner who calls for help. At the same time, the insurance firm would reserve the right to judge whether the fire was actually a hazard to insured property.

The matter is covered in standardized fire insurance requirements as follows:

"When a property owner has agreed or contracted with an organized fire department to pay certain specified charges for services rendered in responding to calls due to fire originating in, on or exposing his property in a locality classified as 10th Class by the Ohio Inspection Bureau, and located outside the corporate limits of a city or town, such charges may be incurred."

Ohio State Eyes Mental Hygiene Bill

COLUMBUS (AP)—The Ohio Senate, after a quiet start on its 21st work week, votes today on a bill to set up a new state department on mental hygiene and correction divorced from the present welfare department.

The proposal is sponsored by Sen. Charles A. Mosher (R-Lorain). It is an answer to those who say the welfare department, with its penal, public assistance and mental hygiene programs, is too big to do a proper job.

If the Republican-controlled Senate and House and Democratic Gov. Frank J. Lausche approve, the present welfare department will be stripped of all but its functions of social and public assistance administration.

The Legislature already has voted to split the department of highways into two sections, including a new department of highway safety. It would include the State Highway Patrol, the Bureau of Motor Vehicles and the new bureau administering the new motorists' financial responsibility law. That measure, after last minute red-tape, probably will go to Lausche for signature late today.

Each of the new departments would have a director of cabinet rank. The governor now has a cabinet numbering an even dozen.

Two Little Ohio Girls Express Hopes, Fears On Year 2003
COLUMBUS (AP)—The hopes and fears for the future of the world were expressed by two little girls from Ohio today.

They wrote what they thought about "Ohio in the Year 2003" for an Ohio School of the Air contest. But their words, expressing the thoughts of millions of other youngsters all over the world, made it seem the girls were doing more than trying to win a prize.

Nancy Jo Riffer of Wilmot, Stark County, an eighth-grader at Beach City School won an Ohio flag from the Ohio Sesqui-centennial Commission for these thoughts on the year 2003:

"Our greatest advancement will

Jessie Lovessy of Athens County, a fifth-grade pupil at Sugar Creek School, is only 10. She wrote as though she had a peek into the 21st century. She said with childhood's simplicity:

"Everything is very different since the atomic bomb was dropped back during the Korean War, and practically all the buildings in Ohio were destroyed. Nearly everyone has turned to God, and the churches are crowded on Sunday."

NEW PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Akron soldier Junior Abbott, 26, decided to take a chance and drive home from an Army camp in Louisiana with his expired 1951 license plates.

Just 40 miles away from Akron on Rt. 21, he turned to his wife and chortled, "Well, honey, we've got it made!"

The next sound was that of a siren on a State Highway Patrol car. The fine: $19.70.

South Korea Tags Proposal 'Allied Defeat'

Roks Lash At Setup As Reversing Recent Position On POW Issue

SEOUL (AP)—Authoritative South Korean sources today revealed that the secret new Allied truce plan would give the United Nations General Assembly the final say in determining the fate of war prisoners who refuse to return to their Red homelands.

The informants said the proposal handed the Communists Monday in Pannumjon was clearly unacceptable to South Korea. One government official called it "nothing but an Allied defeat by the Communists."

The proposal also incorporates some features of previous plans offered by both the Reds and Allies, said the sources, who would not allow use of their names.

The UN Command, which reportedly requested the news blackout on Monday's truce session, would not comment on the plan. It even refused to acknowledge the offer was made.

Some observers in Tokyo said the Allied proposal possibly is being used as tempting bait to Red China, which has long wanted to get into the UN.

BY ACCEPTING the plan, they said, it would give Red China a toe-hold.

House Passes Bill On Pay For Women

The Senate adopted and sent to the House a bill proposing that the Legislative Research Commission draft comprehensive legislation embodying all the recommendations of the Ohio Program Commission.

'Atomic Cannon' Now A Reality

Scientists Refusing To Relax After Test

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—The atomic cannon is an established reality today in America's defense plans. Nuclear scientists have compressed the virtual equivalent of a standard A-bomb into a shell only 11 inches in diameter.

These appear to be the principal results of Monday's highly successful first firing of a nuclear shell from the Army's 280 millimeter gun.

But scientists of the Atomic Energy Commission are not relaxing although the tenth and last scheduled test of the 1953 spring series is over. With the plaudits of defense leaders and legislators ringing in their ears, the AEC technicians are discussing plans for still another test within the next month at Nevada Proving Grounds.

Test Director Carroll L. Tyler will not disclose the nature of the experiment under consideration, but indicates there is one more problem Dr. Alvin C. Graves, scientist.

Sabres Clip Dozen Migs During Duels
SEOUL (AP)—U. S. Sabrejets shot down 12 Communist Migs and damaged another today, boosting their Mig kills this month to 51, just 12 less than the war's one-month record set last September.

Two sharpshooting pilots bagged two Migs each in savage sky battles high over North Korea.

Maj. James Jabara of Wichita, Kan., the world's first jet ace now serving his second combat tour in Korea, got two and boosted his total kills to nine. Maj. Jack E. Mass of Red Bank, N. J., doubled his score with two Migs.

The war's one-day record is 13 kills, one probably and seven damaged on July 4, 1952. Today's bag was the biggest since May 18 when 12 Red jets were destroyed.

Five Migs were shot down this morning and seven after noon, the Air Force said.

Night-flying B26 bombers wiped out 90 Communist trucks, destroyed a locomotive, seven box cars and a railroad bridge in pre-dawn strikes, the Air Force said.

B29 Superforts smashed a 130-acre troop and supply area north of Hamhung on Korea's east coast and bombed smaller supply dumps in the same area.

Ground fighting dwindled to patrol clashes as the air war mounted in intensity.

Williamsport Asks For County To Help Preserve Law, Order
A cauldron of trouble which has been brewing for many months in the village of Williamsport bubbled over the top Monday night.

Touching off the trouble which brought the problem out into the open was a rotten egg bombardment of a village official's home.

Deputy Marshal Chester Dyke, appointed to the post about two weeks ago, left home Monday to bring his children to Berger hospital, where they had their tonsils removed.

When he returned home, Dyke discovered his house had been pelted with rotten eggs, many of the missiles containing the bodies of baby chickens.

APPARENTLY feeling the egg-throwing business the last straw, village officials Tuesday called in county authorities in an effort to preserve law and order.

Responding to the call for aid were Deputy Carl Radcliff, Prosecutor William Ammer and Probation Officer Karl Herrmann, who viewed the Dyke home.

Williamsport Mayor William Johnson said the egg-throwing incident was only one of many law-defying atrocities which "gangs" in the village have perpetrated within the last few months.

"It seems the older fellows are agitating this trouble," Johnson said. "They are telling the boys there is nothing the authorities can do to them."

The Mayor added none of his property has been damaged, but he has "put up with much mental abuse" from jeers and name-calling.

A list of the acts of vandalism makes it appear every night is Halloween in the village.

Senate Approves City Court Bill
Circleville's municipal court proposal cleared its last hurdle in Ohio's 100th legislature Monday when the Senate approved the measure with only one dissenting vote.

The Circleville proposal was one of nine municipal court proposals wrapped into a single bill for passage. All of the new city courts are expected to be put into operation on Jan. 1, 1954, replacing mayor and justice of peace courts within the scope of their jurisdiction.

Other cities represented in the bill which the Senate approved are Cuyahoga Falls, Ravenna, Port Clinton, Kenton, Tiffin, Delaware, Sidney and Athens.

Ford Gives Union Surprise Pension Plan
DETROIT (AP)—The Ford Motor Company did General Motors one better in voluntarily revising its five-year contract with the CIO United Auto workers early today by giving the union the best major pension plan in the industry—a maximum of $137.50 a month.

Before it did so, however, Ford demanded and was given assurance that the crippling strike of UAW workers at its Canton, O., forge plant would be halted immediately. That five-week-old tieup had idled 85,000 of Ford's production workers and virtually shut down the vast Ford production system.

Ford and the UAW wound up two long days of secret, top-level negotiations by formally announcing the contract changes shortly after midnight. Ford president Henry Ford II and UAW and CIO President Walter P. Reuther led the talks.

The big boosts in pension payments—$12.50 to $35 a month—came as somewhat of a bombshell after General Motors, the industry's biggest producer and traditional labor pattern-setter, had signed a supplemental agreement with the UAW only Friday without any pension improvements.

Contracts with GM, Chrysler and virtually all the other automotive firms provide maximum pensions of $125 a month. Both this and the new $137.50 Ford figure include federal social security benefits. All apply at age 65 after 30 years' service.

Cedarville Faculty Facing Layoff
CLEVELAND (AP)—The entire faculty of Cedarville College probably will be dropped this summer as the school is converted to a Baptist theological seminary.

Insurance Idea Is Peace Move In Fire Tangle sured in the same policy which covers the direct loss by fire.

(A 10th Class locality is one at least three miles from the fire department.)

"When this liability is assumed, it shall be included as a separate item as outlined below, at the following rates:

"Cash or Single Payment Note Plan (paying up to $100 per each call, regardless of the number of calls during the insured period)—one year, $1.50; three years, $3.75; five years, $6.00."

A slightly higher rate is available if the property owner wishes to link the fire protection with that against other types of property loss.

The new proposal was outlined as the dispute appeared to be in a complete stall.

CITY OFFICIALS have indicated they would not favor renewal of any pact with the Association unless it provided some manner in which the city could hire another fireman. A plan to achieve this by having the townships pay a prorated amount annually has apparently been snubbed by the Association.

Whether the additional fireman detail could be adjusted into the new proposal was not immediately clear.

Association spokesmen have been silent on their progress toward setting up an independent fire department for the townships.

Sheriff Charles Radcliff, emphasizing his move was only an effort to mediate between the warring groups, has studied the possibility that some suitable arrangement might be reached by hiring an additional deputy to help operate the rural firefighting setup.

Circleville Township sources last week announced such a plan was virtually complete and probably would be in operation soon.

However, Radcliff said this report was entirely without foundation and that he now sees no way in which his department could help solve the problem without handicapping its routine operations.

Lilibet To Queen, Cradle To Throne

By JAMES F. KING

LONDON (P) — Little Princess Elizabeth and her Uncle David were pals.

It was an exciting event for Lilibet when the dashing Prince of Wales dropped around to her house in Piccadilly, as he frequently did in those carefree days.

Such visits were a welcome escape from the regime of her grandmother, Queen Mary, who believed Elizabeth's training should begin early even though the possibility she ever would be queen seemed remote at the time.

A high-brow concert in Albert Hall can be pretty dull for a 7-year-old girl, even a princess. And when Lilibet began wriggling restlessly in her seat the old queen sternly suggested it was time to go home.

"Oh, no, granny," came the childish protest. "We can't leave before the end. Think of the people outside waiting to see us."

Queen Mary, who would stand for no nonsense, ordered her lady-in-waiting to whisk Lilibet home—and by the back door.

Just before Elizabeth's 10th birthday came the first real turning point, both in her education and in the outlook of those guiding her.

King George V, whom Elizabeth called "Grandpapa England," died. The little princess broke into fits of weeping on encountering this first crisis of her life.

Then other changes came fast—too fast for a little girl not yet 10 to understand.

The casual visits of Uncle David, now King Edward VIII, became less and less frequent, and finally stopped altogether. There was a tenseness around Buckingham Palace which was noticeable even to a child.

Finally, on Dec. 10, 1936, not quite a year after George V's death, she and her sister, Princess Margaret, were told they were moving from the Piccadilly house into the palace.

"What, forever and ever?" exclaimed Lilibet in wonderment.

Edward had abdicated for the love of the American divorcee,

Wallis Warfield Simpson. His blue-eyed niece was now next in the direct line of succession, and destined to be Britain's fifth reigning queen.

The princesses were given an explanation of how their uncle was going away for a long time, perhaps forever. Lilibet was not to see her Uncle David until she was a poised, grown-up girl.

She has never lost her affection for him. Now as queen, she has eased the way for the return of the Duke of Windsor to the good graces of the royal family's court. On his rare visits to England he usually calls at Buckingham Palace. But the duke and his wife, Wallis, will not be at the coronation next Tuesday. It would be against constitutional usage for a sovereign or former sovereign of any state to attend the coronation of a king or queen of England, he has explained.

Elizabeth was only 10 at the abdication.

Already the shadows of World War II were shortening. It was the year that Hitler reoccupied the Rhineland, Mussolini triumphantly annexed Ethiopia and the Spanish Civil War dragged.

The coronation of Elizabeth's father as George VI saw her and her sister Margaret taking a full part in purple robes and coronets.

The education of Lilibet went on under private tutors with a new sense of direction now. Sir Henry Marten, vice-provost of Eton, the chief tutor, reported his royal protégée was systematic rather than brilliant, but "considerate, responsive, ready to be interested or amused."

Elizabeth is perhaps the first British sovereign to study American history. Of course there was emphasis on constitutional history and the Empire, the French and German languages, literature, art and dancing.

She learned to play the piano well enough to tackle Beethoven, Chopin and Schumann competently. She enjoyed American popular music, particularly the records of Bing Crosby and the Andrews Sisters.

World War II brought important changes in the life of the princess, and in the Empire. She was 13 when the war broke out—old enough to get a lasting impression of the bombings and hurried scampings to a bomb shelter.

The princesses were evacuated to Birkhall, near Balmoral Castle in Scotland, and then to Windsor Castle where the danger from bombs was not so great.

Elizabeth and Margaret knitted for the armed forces, dug victory gardens, and set aside a schilling a week from their allowance to buy war bonds.

In the ATS Transportation Corps, the British equivalent of the WAC's Elizabeth underwent rough training in overalls, and learned to tear down and grease a motor and drive a truck.

One week there were spit-and-polish preparations for an inspection by ranking visitors, who turned out to be the king and queen.

"I have never seen a royal visit from the inside before," she told her parents. "I didn't know so much preparation went into it."

Perhaps Lilibet was thinking of another royal visit she made with her parents to the Royal Naval College at Dartmouth. There a young blond cadet had caught the eye of the 14-year-old princess. He corresponded with her through the war.

It was the beginning of a romance that blossomed into the marriage of the princess and the dashing naval officer, Prince Philip of Greece.

Burglar Steals Cafeman's Trap

DALLAS (P) — After burglars had entered his "Busy Bee Cafe" 25 times in the last four years, G. H. Ford decided there was a good chance they'd come again.

He rigged up his prize 12-gauge shotgun with a string from the trigger to a window.

Police said Ford has reported burglary No. 26.

Loss: One shotgun.

Memorial Day Caution Urged

COLUMBUS (P) — Highway Director S. O. Linzell urges Ohio motorists to "slow down and stay alive" over the Memorial Day week end.

Citing records showing the highest traffic accident record in the last decade set in 1952, Linzell recommended a seven-point car check for each motorist who plans to travel over the week end. It includes brakes, tires, front wheel alignment and steering apparatus, lights, windshield wipers, rear-view mirror position and clear rear window.

Linzell said defective motor vehicles are responsible for one of every 10 traffic accidents. Ohio recorded 17 deaths last Memorial Day.

Rate Hike OK'd

YOUNGSTOWN (P) — A two-judge court has approved a 3.3 per cent increase in water rates which Youngstown and Niles must pay the Mahoning Valley Sanitary District. The boost will be absorbed by the cities, at no additional cost to the consumers.

Ex-Parachutist 'Relaxes' In 11-Story Fall

CHICAGO (P) — A husky ex-paratrooper "just relaxed" when he fell 11 stories from a building under construction Monday and suffered only a broken rib.

"Hey, I must have forgotten my parachute," grinned Thomas Grace, Jr., 27, as fellow workers rushed to his aid.

Grace, a pipefitter's apprentice, joking about his fall, said:

"I was in the paratroopers in World War II and I learned how to fall. I twisted my body so my head wouldn't hit. That saved me."

Grace was drilling a hole at the 11th floor of the skeleton building when the handle of the electric drill came off and the vibration tossed him into space.

At the third floor level his left side smashed against a bricklayers' scaffold.

"I got a look at the faces of some of the bricklayers," laughed Grace. "Boy, were they surprised!"

Grace landed between two manholes under construction and missed bricks and rubble in the area.

Ohioans Swelter In Heat Wave

COLUMBUS (P) — The weather man says Ohioans will swelter again today as a major heat wave continues to cause mass discomfort.

Near record temperatures were recorded in many cities Monday. Some relief is in sight for tonight with the prospect of thunderstorms.

Mercury Climbing, Divining Rod Debate May End In Test Here

Summer's temperatures edged up toward the dangerous levels Monday, and several local residents almost immediately began to argue the merits of "water witching" claims.

The controversy is an old one that enjoys frequent revivals immediately before and during the hot-and-dry months of the year. Newsworthy touch to the new outbreak here was a proposal that a "strictly impartial" test be arranged locally "to prove some people just don't know what they're talking about."

"Water witching," or use of a divining rod, has long been accepted by some persons as a reliable method of locating underground water, flowing free or through pipes. Also involved in the current debate here is a related method by which, it was claimed, empty metal or tile pipes can be located in similar fashion by using two pieces of bent wire—one in each hand.

In the case of a divining rod, usually a tree branch, it is said to be drawn noticeably toward subterranean water. The two pieces of bent wire, believers insist, will be drawn toward each other when the person holding them is directly above the hidden pipe line.

SEVERAL WHO engaged in the current revival of the argument mentioned the possibility of a showdown test of the idea. Among this group was Councilman John Robinson who wants to locate a pipe on property he owns.

It was not clear whether the councilman believes the pipe has water, hence the decision has yet to be made on whether a tree branch or pieces of wire will be used to find it.

Ralph Leist, Pickaway County Courthouse fireman, is one of many firm believers in "water witching" and the pieces-of-wire system. He readily agreed to select the right person and have him, or her, locate the lost pipe for Robinson.

Leist emphasized everyone isn't capable of concentrating correctly on the "water witching" task.

"You have to have confidence in it," he explained.

Mayor Ed Amey, a bystander who indicated he lacked the necessary confidence, recalled the "witching" system was used to locate underground water at Pickaway Country Club.

He said water was finally located, but only after many dry holes were dug at various spots.

SCOFFERS MAY weaken in their doubts after reading what The New Standard Encyclopedia asserts on the subject. That particular reference source says:

"A divining rod is a forked branch, usually of hazel but sometimes of iron, brass and copper, by which minerals and water are alleged to have been discovered beneath the surface of the earth."

"The rod, when suspended by the two prongs, sometimes between the balls of the thumbs, is supposed to show by its inclination the spot under which the concealed mine or spring is situated."

"The divining rod was known in ancient times and it is clearly described by both Cicero and Tacitus. Other powers are ascribed to the divining rod, and persons, even of some pretensions to scientific knowledge, have been believers in LONDON (P) — Choice seats along the coronation route sold for up to $165 apiece today, with many still on the auction block, even as holiday crowds converged on this metropolis for a preview of the royal pageant June 2.

Memorial Day Drivers Urged To Use Caution

Motorists who are planning a trip over Memorial Day were urged Tuesday by Police Chief Elmer Merriman to exercise common-sense caution when driving.

He laid particular emphasis on checking the condition of lights, brakes, tires and steering mechanism before undertaking Memorial Day trips.

"A little precaution," he said, "may save motorists the pain and financial loss of an accident over the holiday. Vehicle maintenance is economical—an occasional car check is just about the cheapest insurance a motorist can have."

"Memorial Day," Merriman added, "is the time when we pause to honor all the dead who have given their lives to protect America throughout its illustrious history. But we should also pause on Memorial Day to give some thought to all those who are needlessly killed in traffic accidents."

"A life saved is worth a little extra courtesy, caution and common-sense."

Radioactive Clouds Helping U.S. Industry

Byproducts Now Used To Help Perfect Modern Products

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP)—Radioactive clouds from atomic explosions may frighten some people. But industry is learning to live with the atom and to harness it to the dollar.

Without waiting for the day when atomic energy may run electric power plants, many companies are saving thousands of dollars by using atomic byproducts to perfect new products and new industrial processes. More wonders may be on the way.

New chemical compounds are being found by atomic research, the University of Michigan reports.

Radioactive materials have helped farmers get bigger corn and tobacco yields, have helped doctors find and cure such diseases as hyperthyroidism.

Scientists are now trying to find ways to keep meat from spoiling for months, to make a better tooth paste, to improve livestock feeds, to find new and better insecticides and fungicides, to learn what really happens in the vulcanization of rubber, to study the underground flow of oil and perhaps thus extend the known limits of oil fields.

The Eisenhower administration's decision to cut the atomic budget may not hamper this work too much, as it mostly pays its own way. There are some 1,000 users of radio-isotopes, or radioactive materials, shipped from the Oak Ridge atomic plant, which has about 100 different kinds on sale. The Atomic Energy Commission spends less than one per cent of its budget on this phase.

Radioactive materials are produced by sticking a bit of a number of things from a hunk of gold to piston rings into the atomic pile for a time.

The resulting radioactive piston ring, for example, then gives off small radioactive particles. The piston ring is put into an engine and wear on the ring can be told quickly and cheaply by draining the oil and measuring its activity.

The radioactive particles act as a tracer. With detecting instruments you can "see" what's happening, where the radioactive particles are going and how fast.

Older methods of finding out about wear in an engine or a costly machine tool required dismantling an engine or machinery and weighing the rings or other parts to find out how much had been lost by friction. The radioactive tracer is faster and much cheaper.

The sole function of government in a free republic is to protect the right of persons to enjoy liberty by restraining those who refuse to respect such rights of their fellow citizens.

The function of government in a collectivistic society, such as Communism or Socialism, is to make each individual a servant of the government, depending upon it for his livelihood.

"One Wafex Wafer before each meal" AND AWAY GOES UGLY FAT!

How WAFEX Prevents Overeating, —Hunger

According to scientific calculations, one WAFEX wafer has the hunger-satisfying capacity of 1 lb. boiled potatoes, or 5 slices white bread, or 4 eggs — yet it contains only 5 calories.

DOCTORS: Send us your professional letterhead for clinical data, reports and professional samples of WAFEX.

WAFEX INC. NEW YORK 31, N. Y.

Yes it's true. You can lose pounds and inches of ugly fat doing nothing more than taking a Wafex Wafer before each meal. No diets are necessary. You take your Wafex Wafer and then sit down and eat until satisfied. Yet Wafex is not a drug. It is a food adjunct — and as harmless as a glass of water.

Here's the Proof

A group of physicians associated with one of New York's largest hospitals tested Wafex on a large group of overweight people. These people were instructed by the doctors not to go on a diet, not to cut out any special foods, just take a Wafex Wafer before each meal. Excess fat disappeared the very first week — at the end of the test weight losses of 8 to 30 lbs. were obtained. And without any diet — hunger, or ill effects. Electro-cardiograms proved no harm to the heart.

Wafex is the economical way to lose weight. Only $1.59 for 10 day supply — $3.00 for 30 day supply. $5.00 for 60 day supply. The very first bottle must please you or you get your money back.

Grandma, 78, Gets Diploma, Seeks Career

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP)—"It's never too late to learn," a 78-year-old grandmother exclaimed here just shortly before getting a degree from Huntingdon College and asking for job placement to begin a new career.

More than 60 children, grandchildren, relatives and friends were on hand to see Mrs. Mable Feagin of Union Springs, Ala., attain an ambition she has had for 59 years. Mrs. Feagin has wanted to finish college ever since 1893, when "a matter of finances" forced her to leave Price's College for Young Ladies, in Nashville, Tenn., after her freshman year.

The little lady finally got her chance to resume a college career in 1950, after rearing four children, sending three of them through college, and working as a home demonstrator agent for 20 years. "After being retired from my job at 70," said Mrs. Feagin, "I realized there is an age limit for working, teaching or almost anything else. But there is no age limit for going to school."

Graduate Feagin came through with a high B average for the four years. And her professors called her an "excellent" and "inspiring" student.

"Oh, I have loved studying!" she said. "My glimpses into history and literature and philosophy have allowed me to look back and understand all my years better."

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower and Secretary of State Dulles, who take the Russians' people talk with a grain of salt, have said the Kremlin could demonstrate sincerity by agreeing to an Austrian peace treaty.

But Sir Winston Churchill has been strangely optimistic since Russia's Premier Malenkov last March said he thought peace was possible. Churchill's British government suggested a new Big Four conference on Austria.

Representatives of the United States, Britain, Russia and France have met more than 260 times since the war to work out a treaty—the last time was in February—and the progress made could be stuffed into a thimble.

And because they have never been able to agree, they have occupied Austria since the war. The Western Allies have 25,000 or more troops there, the Russians about 45,000.

So long as Russia has troops in Austria, she has an excuse for keeping some of her troops in Romania and Hungary, too. The reason? To keep open Russian lines of communication, the Kremlin says.

Once a treaty was signed all the Big Four would withdraw from Austria. In that case Russia would have to find another excuse for keeping troops in the two nearby satellites, Romania and Hungary.

For the treason, and because Russia's troops in Austria give her a bridgehead to the West, some Austrian officials have been skeptical the Russians would agree to a treaty any time in the foreseeable future.

Nevertheless the British thought another try was worthwhile. The invitation they sent out was for representatives of the U. S., Britain, Russia and France to meet in London tomorrow to tackle the Austrian problem again.

Churchill went even further by proposing that he and President Eisenhower and Malenkov have a meeting of their own on a raft of other difficulties.

The U. S. was willing to send a representative to the Austrian conference but Eisenhower balked at meeting with Malenkov until the Russians showed by deeds — an Austrian peace treaty would be one—that they wanted peace.

So what the Russians did at the London conference on Austria was going to be watched very carefully. But late yesterday, almost at the last minute before conference time, the Russians coldly rejected the idea.

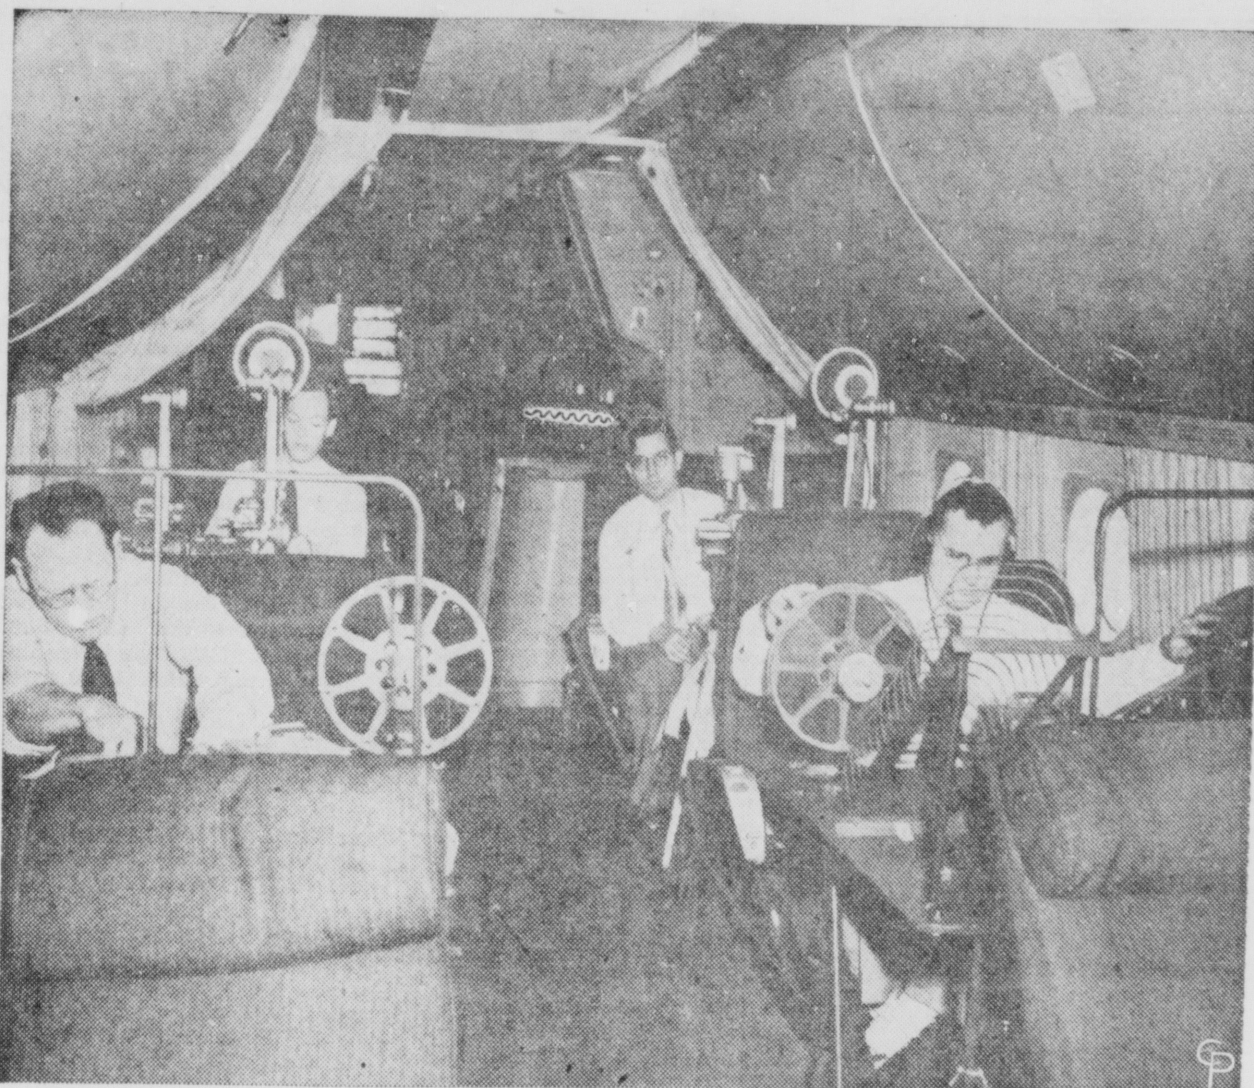

Declining to send anyone to the conference, the Russians, through their ambassador to London, Jacob Malik, said they couldn't see how another meeting on Austria promised any more results than the previous 260 meetings.

This may have thrown into gloom those Western diplomats who shared Churchill's optimism. But it does not cancel out the possibility that tomorrow, or next week, the Russians may make a new, conciliatory move in another direction.

They could offer a concession in a place that means less to them than Austria, even though they had no intention of carrying through on it.

For if they could make those same Westerners, who were deceived by the Russian stand on Austria, jump with hope and eagerness about something else they'd be doing precisely what the Russians seem to be trying to make them do: dance to the Russian tune every time the Kremlin plays one.

It would not be surprising if, to drive a wedge deeper between the U. S. and its Western allies who are more eager to grab at Russian bait, the Kremlin soon offers to do something which means far

Major Problem: What Shade Of Lipstick For The Queen

By DOROTHY ROE

Associated Press Women's Editor

A factor of major importance in the coronation is choosing exactly the correct shade of lipstick for Queen Elizabeth to wear in next Tuesday's solemn and spectacular ceremony, says Thelma Holland, British beauty expert to whom is entrusted the makeup of the queen and most of the peeresses.

Miss Holland, an attractive born in Melbourne, Australia, will discuss the beauty of the young queen in a recorded interview Tuesday on the CBS radio feature, "Family Counselor," a public service.

Foster Awarded Stay From Trial

NEW YORK (AP)—William Z. Foster, American Communist party chairman, has won a new and probably lasting stay from standing trial on charges of conspiracy to teach and advocate violent overthrow of the government.

Federal Judge Sylvester J. Ryan yesterday granted an indefinite continuance in the case after saying a trial might kill the 72-year-old Foster, who has a bad heart. Ryan's action was based on the findings of a court-appointed physician.

Mother-In-Law Support Shunned

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Actor John Wayne has won a point in his temporary alimony battle with his estranged wife. The judge says he doesn't think Wayne should have to continue supporting his mother-in-law.

Jerome Rosenthal, attorney for Mrs. Esperanza Baer Wayne, contended yesterday the actor should continue to pay $650 to her mother.

"I don't see how you can expect to force this man to support his mother-in-law when the law does not require him to do so," Judge William R. McKay said after objections by Wayne's attorney.

250 Watch As Musician Takes Life

NEW YORK (AP)—A jobless musician made his last appearance yesterday before an audience—some 250 curious passersby who watched him plunge to his death a half hour after he killed his wife with a hatchet.

His stage was a roof six stories above Broadway at 184th Street. He shared it with his teen-aged daughter, who had covered in horror as he killed her mother. The girl then vainly tried to talk him off the roof.

The saxophone-clarinet player, Joseph Dura, 40 brought down the final curtain on his life 10 days after being released from Bellevue Hospital. He had undergone psychiatric examination there following a quarrel with his wife, Wanda 37.

Yesterday the two argued again. The climax of the fight came when he hacked his wife with the hatchet. Their daughter Barbara, 16, witnessed part of the attack and then fled for police.

When she returned, her father was on the roof for his last act. He clutched a television aerial, then loosed his grip and back-flipped from the roof.

THE NEIGHBORS

SUN HAS BROUGHT the neighbors out, supplying a new sense of how cramped Winter quarters can be. In Winter, the neighborhood is limited by the distance one can sprint without an overcoat to borrow a cup of sugar. The blocks split up into societies of two or three families, each within earshot of the other's radio. And the families exchange hospitality in that curious type of neighborly informality that never achieves intimacy.

The Winter neighborhood is precious in its way. The neighbors demand very little—say an emergency loaf of bread—and give much. Their company when friends are so many snowy miles away.

People learn in Winter to appreciate neighbors who in general are friends only by propinquity and yet while their lives touch have a loyalty which is perhaps the stronger because it is an attachment rather to a way of life than to a person.

But now the neighborhood has broadened. The small circles join together in the larger circles of shirtsleeves. The bonds of neighborliness loosen as they lengthen. This larger world, freer and less intense, suits the season when nature itself is so full of life that man is no longer thrust inward on his own thoughts.

Loneliness has ceased to be the mood of the land.

SWORDS AND PLOWSHARES

DELIGHTS OF PEACE, so briefly and unsatisfactorily tasted within the last 14 years, were temptingly portrayed by a large, white marine object which last week sailed into New York harbor and to a Hudson River dock.

The uninformed eye would have taken this to be a particularly attractive cruise-ship, gracefully yachtlike in design, of 15,000 tons burden and a passenger capacity not far short of 900. The uninformed eye would have been right. The large, white marine object was the new Italian liner, Roma, now assigned to the transatlantic run.

The informed eye, nevertheless, might have seen in the Roma possibly the biggest war weapon ever beaten, metaphorically, into a plowshare. The Roma, formerly the United States aircraft carrier Atheling, now is a dollar-earner for the dollar-needing Italians. It is a miraculous transformation, both as a feat of marine engineering and as an earnest gesture of what peace, real peace, could be like.

If all the flat-tops could be converted into such a pleasure craft as this, what a fine world it would be.

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

In my researches in the British and American editions of the Earl Jowitt's "Strange Case of Alger Hiss," I have found more than 100 factual errors, a statement which I can at any time document. Some are trivial; some very important. Yet, when one realizes that Earl Jowitt was Lord Chancellor of England, such a number of errors is surprising.

I am taking today a series of errors relating to a $400 loan which was a factor in the Hiss hearings and trials.

Whittaker Chambers bought a car and paid $436 cash. The question is where did he get the money? Four days before Chambers bought the car, that is, on November 19, 1937, Priscilla Hiss, Alger's wife, withdrew $400 from her account in the Riggs National Bank in Washington. In due course, Chambers said Hiss gave him that $400. If Chambers was correct, it sets a date when Hiss and Chambers were on friendly terms, and that mattered in the trial.

Now comes Earl Jowitt with the contention that the entire $400 loan may be a fabrication by the FBI. These are his words:

"...The FBI in the course of their investigations had obtained access to the books of the bank in February, 1949, and at this very time Chambers was in daily association with the FBI. If they had revealed to Chambers that Hiss had withdrawn $400 only four days before Chambers purchased his new car, the significance which Mr. Murphy (now Judge Thomas Murphy) sought to attach to the fact that Chambers had not seen Hiss's pass-book seems to me to disappear altogether."

Again, in another place, he repeats this: "Chambers, for example, had never mentioned the supposed loan of $400 in his evidence before the House Committee or, indeed, until the first trial; and by this time he could have found out from the FBI that Hiss had withdrawn $400 at or about the relevant time—for the FBI had obtained a copy of the account on the 31st January 1949."

The upshot of Jowitt's handling of what he makes very involved and complicated testimony about the $400, and I have six references to it, is, in effect, that the FBI framed that particular piece of evidence to convict Hiss. As Rebecca West put it:

"...This is likely to please the American public just as much as it would please the British public if a judge of the American Supreme Court should write a book about an English cause celebre and casually assert that Scotland Yard had provided the chief witness for the Crown with information enabling him to give perjured evidence."

Actually Mrs. Chambers had testified about this matter on November 17, 1948, two and a half months before the FBI had access to the Hiss bank accounts (January 30, 1949) and the FBI went after the bank accounts after Mrs. Chambers had testified. If, as it is claimed, Earl Jowitt made a thorough study of the transcript of the Second Hiss Trial, it is difficult to understand why he did not check the dates.

In the re-direct examination, during the Second Hiss Trial, Mrs. Chambers answered questions thus:

Misplaced Sex Glands in Boys Should Be Corrected Promptly

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

MANY mothers are upset on learning that their infant or growing sons have misplaced sex glands. This is nothing to conceal or be ashamed of, for these glands are usually capable of functioning normally once the condition is corrected. If this does not happen by itself, the defect should be corrected by a doctor.

In the male, the sex glands (testes) first develop inside the child's abdomen, and later travel down to their special sac, the scrotum. This change takes place in the last month before birth.

Arrested Descent

However, in many cases this development stops before the child is born. We then have an arrested descent, which is a third more frequent in premature infants than full term babies. Usually, the descent completes itself naturally before the child matures.

In certain cases, the descent of the testes to their normal position is prevented, perhaps by adhesions, a narrowing of the path of descent, or some form of glandular abnormality. When this happens, steps should be taken to correct the condition, for a male gland not in its proper location may become sterile, and will not be able to produce sperm for reproduction purposes later on in life.

Later Danger

Male glands not in their proper place also have a greater chance of developing cancer. Rupture, or hernia, also occurs more often in these cases.

If a child reaches five to seven years of age with undescended sex glands, a pituitary gland hormone may be given. This is known as gonadotropic hormone and is given by injection about twice a week.

If the hormone fails to improve the situation after a sufficient period of time, it is usually best to have an operation to transplant the male organs to the correct location. This is usually a fairly simple operation.

Less Risk of Tumor

In a few cases, it is impossible for the surgeon to return a testis to its normal place. He then usually removes it in order to lessen the possibility of a tumor in the misplaced organ. Often only one testis is undescended, and the remaining gland is ample for the purpose of reproduction.

Some mothers, because of shame, have neglected this disorder for many years. Any child having a misplaced male sex gland should be under a physician's care so he can correct the condition, when possible.

QUESTION AND ANSWER

Mr. R. A.: Is it safer to have a Caesarean delivery than a normal delivery?

Answer: No. Usually it is much better to be delivered by normal means. In fact, babies delivered by Caesarean section have a greater tendency to have a complication, known as atelectasis, in which there is a collapse of the lungs. But, of course, Caesarean sections can be safely carried out for both mother and baby.

Try, Stop Me

A Wall Street financier soon discovered that the stock market was much easier to master than golf. In one round on his home course he tore up so many divots he soon ceased bothering to replace them. Returned eventually to the clubhouse, he paid his caddy, remarking wearily, "I'd move heaven and earth to be able to play this darn game!" The caddy observed, "After that round, sir, heaven's about all you have left."

Mae West's alluring line, "Come up and see me sometime," has become so closely identified with her in the public mind that she uses it in nearly every interview she grants. There was one day, however, when the phrase froze on her lips. She was introduced to Papa Dionne, father of the quintuplets. Mae swallowed convulsively, then merely muttered: "Hello."

When deer were introduced in to New Zealand they became so numerous as to be a pest.

SYNOPSIS

The eight guest-passengers aboard the yacht "Spiritus" out of Nassau, Bahamas, are gripped by terror when a shot is fired in the night and their host and owner of the craft, wealthy, eccentric Darius Opdyke is reported missing from the vessel. Sardonically, the ship's captain, assembles his passengers in the salon, advising them that Opdyke had a premonition of meeting with foul play on the voyage, and had consequently left his will in Jonas' keeping. The document decrees that the "Spiritus" continue along her course toward South America for seven days, by the end of which period Mr. Opdyke had believed his killer would be revealed. Eagle-eyed Stewardess Macbeth is placed in charge of the women and she watches over them like a jallor. The Gray Walton movie actress, to become hysterical and Dr. Reuben Randolph, a psychiatrist, comforts her. Elderly Lady Lisa Tremaine, and Larry Redding, a broker, and Frederick Brown, a lawyer, each admit having quarreled with their host prior to his disappearance.

CHAPTER TEN

RANDOLPH seemed pleased at the discomfiture he had caused Brown. "It will be interesting, clinically, to observe the effects of strain on such different personalities." His cold gray eyes went over all of us as if he were hunting for symptoms. No one commented on this unpopular suggestion. The doctor continued suavely, "Now we know just where everyone was except the Captain."

But Jonas was too wise a rat to be caught with such a small piece of cheese.

"I take your meaning, Doctor, and I'll answer you, although I don't know as I should. I was on the bridge where I belonged, like I told you in the first place. And plenty saw me there."

"I don't take a very smart man to figure out that there is something wrong in all these stories. Nobody was around, and everybody was alone. It don't make sense. I didn't kill the old man, and I know that too. You're all hiding something you don't want let out before this cruise is over over folks will talk. You'll talk and be glad to. Hez and me'll see to that."

"Are you threatening us?" Robert asked quietly.

"I'm telling you, Mister, I'm just telling you, that's all." His deep-set eyes went around the room as if daring someone to oppose him, but no one did. When he was satisfied that he had the upper hand, he added in a curt way, "Breakfast's ready now, down in the dining salon."

Being ordered around was a new experience for Lisa, and she did not take to it very well.

"I shall just go and wash up first," she said quietly.

"Them as eats, eats right now," the Captain told her. "Fancy notions is out from here on in."

She answered him with the most crushing politeness. "I still say that I shall wash up first." And on the heels of this small defiance, she left the room.

By

WASHINGTON, May 25 — The grand, anti-Russian alliance known as the North Atlantic Treaty Organization is now appraised by studious members of Congress as a political and military myth, although its first organizer and commander occupies the White House.

After hours of testimony on Capitol Hill by Gen. Matthew B. Ripley, retiring chief of SHAPE, NATO has been written off by his listeners as a solid defense against a Red invasion of Western Europe. This suspicion has been supplemented by public statements of Gen. Alfred M. Gruenther, who will succeed Ripley in Paris. It also is borne out by confidential reports of touring legislators and businessmen.

RUSSIAN MENACE — American leaders must still continue to express optimism over the eventual result of this experiment. But their honest statements belie their professional attitude. Ripley concedes that the European Defense Community is "terribly inadequate," while Gruenther admits that Russian power is "terribly menacing."

A serious thrust westward by the Red horde would see the nations in its path fall more quickly than they did before Hitler's panzer divisions and his dive bombers. There is no force to stop or even hold them, and there appears to be no likelihood that the squabbling allies will build such a bulwark in the next few years.

SOVIETS UNAFRAID — It is post-Stalin internal stress and their enemies' growing dissension which deter the Reds from attack, according to military and diplomatic estimates. It is NOT the fear of any resistance that NATO's thin line could offer on the battlefield or in the air.

To present the picture in its realistic and frightening framework, it is necessary only to quote Ripley's warning that "for the United States to try to go it alone would mean inevitable disaster!"

This is the cruel problem which President Eisenhower faces after less than six months in the White House. It also is a situation concerning which the American people need more facts than they now possess.

DISPARITY — Despite the expenditure of billions at home and abroad, the disparity between the exists in every category of weapons and supplies in every field of combat. Nor is there any prospect of narrowing it, in view of sagging morale, political differences and proposed military economies in the Western world.

The Allies, for instance, have approximately 20 divisions—six American, four British, and ten from the French, Dutch and Belgians. But the Anglo-American units are the only ones sufficiently equipped for all too brief action. Even they lack ammunition and gasoline, the most elementary needs of a fighting force. They could not fight for more than a few weeks.

MOSCOW PREPARES — They are hopelessly deficient in modern planes, tanks and artillery. There are only twelve Sabre jets on our Western front, although they are our only type capable of defeating the Russian Mig's. The pipelines and supply dumps required to feed a mechanized army are not completed, due to a combination of French red tape delays in shipment from this country and labor shortages.

As against this token organization, Moscow has 175 divisions in readiness. Thirty are stationed in the satellite countries of Eastern Europe, with 22 in East Germany alone. In fast and heavy fighting stuff—planes, tanks, motor vehicles, artillery—they are prepared for an immediate offensive.

GERMANS NEEDED—All our experts concede that only the addition of 500,000 German troops will transform this will-o-the-wisp outfit into an effective army. But Bonn has reluctantly approved the rearming treaty, and its validity must still be tested in court. Even if it survives this challenge, it will be several years before a West German force could appear in the field.

In view of Anglo-French eagerness to talk peace with Malenkov, there is a possibility that none of the 14 NATO nations will ratify the treaty, certainly not for a year or more. Their hesitancy derives from the fact that, being on the spot, they know the overpowering strength of the Reds' war machine and the mythical nature of NATO's military and political structure.

Republican Women Hold Sesquicentennial Program

'Nine-Teens' Present Musical Numbers

With tables centered with a large anniversary cake cut in the shape of the map of Ohio with a cardinal iced in red, the theme was set for the noon luncheon and program of the Pickaway County Women's Republican Club held in St. Philip's Episcopal church Monday. Red carnations and Buckeye leaves were on either side of the cake and wicker baskets of spring flowers at regular intervals. Large baskets of garden flowers were placed on the stage and the American flag that was spotlighted was kept rippling by the motion of a fan.

To lend atmosphere members taking part in the program were in full colonial dress.

Mrs. Herbert Caldwell, president of the club, presided. Mrs. C. A. Bliss, program chairman, introduced the 'Nine-Teens', nine girls from the Grove City high school who sang several selections under the direction of Mrs. Christine Young. Traffic Safety Crusade Urged

The nation's 30 million organized clubwomen were urged to join in the crusade for traffic safety.

That was the appeal of Mrs. J. Howard Hodge, safety chairman of the General Federation of Women's Clubs who pointed out that local women's or parents' Clubs are an effective force for making individuals traffic safety conscious.

"Traffic safety requires grassroots organization which must reach every individual in every community", she said. "The women's club can command the willing hands, feet and 'phoned necessary to spread the crusade personally into every home," Mrs. Hodge said.

The incentive for clubs to organize and promote such safety programs is greater than ever, Mrs. Hodge said. In addition to the personal satisfaction of seeing the community's accident statistics improve, there is a $1,000 defense bond and handsome bronze trophy for the club which creates the most outstanding program each year.

A five-point guide for women's clubs interested in organizing a local program are outlined as follows:

1. - Create a club committee to gather information about the community's safety sore spots from such professional sources as the police traffic department, mayor or local safety council chapter.
2. - Decide whether to focus on a single aspect of traffic safety or on an all-inclusive program.
3. - Coordinate the program with official and private agencies already working for safety. Seek their cooperation.
4. - Consider every medium of community — movies, newspapers, TV and radio station, churches, advertisers, etc. Appoint members of the committee to provide material for these outlets.
5. - Harness the serious business of safety to entertainment activities wherever possible. Barbecues, bicycle rodeos, dances, parades, rallies and stunts make the safety lessons fun to learn.

Comfort, Convenience Are Added By Installing Another Bathroom

The homeowner can install an additional bath in his house at low cost. Increased family comfort and convenience will repay him for the investment, and the re-sale value of the house is also increased.

Some pointers on adding a new bathroom are:

1. Architects recommend all fixtures in the second bathroom be lined up along one wall, back-to-back with a kitchen or existing bathroom wall containing water lines.

This will save on plumbing and carpentry labor. Most older houses have ready-made space in dining alcoves off the kitchen or in an over-sized hall adjoining kitchen or bathroom, making a back-to-back installation possible.

2. A CEILING exhaust fan, vented to an open attic, enables space to be used for a second bathroom which might not otherwise be practical. The fan removes steam faster than a window and will not chill.

3. More storage space is provided by installing a built-in clothes hamper or cabinet under the wash basin. Cost is lowered as finished flooring is not needed under this cabinet.

4. Corner space can be utilized by a floor-to-ceiling built-in with open shelves below, a closed cabinet above.

5. On walls where a conventional cabinet would interfere with traffic, a slant-front cabinet can be installed, angled so that it is deep at the ceiling, shallow at the bottom.

6. Pastel floors show soil less conspicuously than darker shades.

With pastels now replacing dark colors in the home, tile is sought for its high style as well as for its durability and its great resistance to moisture.

7. A pass-through from bathroom to linen closet will cost little and is especially desirable if the bathroom contains washers and driers.

8. A pull-out drawer under the lavatory to be used as a step allows children to reach faucets.

9. Lower bathtubs enable children to climb in and out safely, while tubs with wide rims provide space for mothers to sit while bathing children.

Linoleum Holes

If you have small holes in your linoleum they can be fixed easily. Mix a paste of finely chopped cork and shellac. Allow the paste to harden in the hole. Then sandpaper smooth and touch up with paint to match the color of the linoleum.

Concrete forms made of plywood can be re-used as much as 50 times, builders report.

Spraying Paint Can Be Risky

Spraying quick-drying enamels, lacquers and paints with a vacuum cleaner attachment or other household contrivance is risky business. Most of the quick-drying finishes contain amyl acetate and other volatile liquids. Their vapors mixed with air set up an explosion potential that can be touched off by sparks in the vacuum cleaner motor.

All paint spraying should be done outdoors if possible.

Otherwise open all windows and doors for thorough ventilation and take every precaution against open flames, such as a pilot light on the kitchen range, sparks, such as those caused by electrical connections, and never smoke.

When using a paint roller on a ceiling it is usually prudent to apply a strip of paint along the edge with a brush to keep the roller away from the walls.

Single Glaze Picture Windows Pose Problem For Cooling Air

Adequate insulation is as important for an air conditioned house as it is to the efficiency of a refrigerator.

Therefore, windows become an extravagance, seriously interfering with their heat loss with economical operation of air conditioning.

Since the best way to insulate windows is to double them, creating an insulating air space between panes, we use storm windows in winter in colder climates.

But to have storm windows up the year-round presents problems. Dust and moisture seep in between the two layers of glass necessitating frequent washing and polishing to maintain clear view.

MODERN DOUBLE glazing ends that trouble. Two panes of clear glass are sealed with a dehydrated air space between them.

No dust, moisture or even a air can get into this space. When windows need washing, they need it only on the outdoor and indoor surfaces. The sealed insulating space is permanently clean.

Such double glazing has a double effect.

It not only makes it possible to have large picture windows and window walls without creating heat loss or heat intake problems, but it also actually reduces the load on air conditioning equipment.

Case histories of air conditioned buildings show the use of double glazing makes it possible to reduce the size of cooling equipment, resulting in substantial savings in original costs as well as in operating expenses.

A wet basement can often be corrected by sloping the lawn grade away from the house, so water will drain away from the foundation.

Movable Walls Are Feature Of 'Home Of Future'

How would you like a modern oak floored home in which the interior walls could be moved for rearrangement of rooms without costly changing of permanent partitions?

Donald Lampland, a St. Paul, Minn., lumber dealer, has just such a house. Described by builders who have inspected it as "years ahead of the times," the four-bedroom dwelling was constructed in accordance with advanced concepts of home building.

The new techniques, which effected a saving of 10 per cent or more in construction costs, could be adapted to erection of a home in any price class.

Key to the economy and room flexibility of the St. Paul house is the specially developed roof trussing which permits the weight load of the roof to be borne by the exterior walls and walls of the living-dining room.

Other interior partitions were put into place after installation of the paneled ceilings and the oak floors.

Of attractive redwood, fir and cedar, these walls were fastened firmly at tops, bottoms and sides with nails which were not driven completely home. The nails can be withdrawn easily with a claw hammer and the partitions moved with little difficulty.

Expansion of the house also is possible at relatively small cost.

New Trends Bring Outside Inside House

By ELEANOR ROSS

The day of the large house is undeniably past, and architects and builders are busy finding ways to make the smaller house not only as comfortable as possible but at least to seem larger.

Sitting in on a house building group recently, we noticed that one of the best methods advanced is usually to add the outdoors, utilizing window walls, so that the eye is not halted by a solid wall, thus doing away with the usual boundaries of the conventional room.

To achieve this visual magic successfully, there must be no apparent break between outdoors and indoors, so modern designers, it seems, are utilizing materials inside the house that for years have mostly been used only for exteriors or landscaping.

Looking at a group of houses later, we found that patio or terrace flooring of quarried stone is very apt to be continued right inside the house as flooring for hall, dining or living room and for a game room.

When this is done, the same stone is used in both areas, but usually the outside flooring will be rough in finish and the indoor stone flooring smooth.

AS A MEANS of lowering the actual construction cost of a house as well as to add a new textural interest to the inside, an exterior wall will be carried right through to form an indoor wall that will house a fireplace. By the use of similar stone for the landscaping outside, the presence of the stone wall inside seems natural and right.

The most delightful building idea we have seen in a long career of looking at houses, is bringing the out-of-doors garden indoors, the ideal way of adding beauty and a spacious look to a living room.

It's the sort of thing that one would expect to find only in a millionaire's mansion, but there it was in a suburban development.

It consists of placing large window boxes indoors at the base of large picture windows, but the results are so charming, it is almost like living in a greenhouse without any of the disadvantages.

In the house we admired, quarried stone had been banked around the base of the window from the floor to the window sill, just as it would be for an indoor garden. The stone "fences in" an area that, we were told, can be from eight inches to as much as 16 inches wide, depending on the room size.

Since there is such a wide variety of stone, a color that fits in with the general decorating scheme can be chosen. The range is from brilliant red to equally bright green, and includes purples, blues, yellows and earth colors as well as buff, eggshell beige and gray.

If the windows look out on a terrace, then a stone similar to that used outside the window would make the illusion of outdoors coming indoors even more vivid.

As for the plantings, these should be of the exotic or casual house plants that can be grown indoors the year around. And looking after the greenhouse garden in the living room will be a major pleasure.

Chalky Plaster

When an old plastered wall becomes so chalky that it is difficult to make wallpaper stick to it, a coat of shellac, which dries quickly, solves the problem and allows the wallpaper to be applied in the usual way.

Electric deodorizers, which blow room air through activated carbon, can absorb and hold as much as 15 per cent of the weight of the carbon in odors and gaseous impurities.

This New Home Will Please All Members Of The Family

Extra Room Makes Place For Dad's Den

Covered Patio
Ideal For Young People's Parties

Shown in the accompanying pictures is a home to please all members of the family.

Dad's delight will be the extra room. It's a den, a place where he can retreat to escape chattering teenagers or the weekly visit of the bridge club.

Mother will go for the kitchen arrangement, particularly the snack bar that separates kitchen and breakfast nook.

She'll find it comes in handy when it's time to serve meals or clear dishes away.

AS FOR THE younger members of the family, they'll like the covered terrace—an ideal place to entertain the gang at parties and summer barbecues. It can be reached from garage, den or living room.

These are just a few of the interesting features included in plans for this two-story home.

The architect took full advantage of the layout and has provided spacious activity areas.

The large living room, for example, has a pretty picture window that takes up most of one wall. Two corner windows at the opposite end of the room provide a pleasant view of the terrace. The room has a fireplace, too.

The cozy dining room is a particularly attractive mealtime setting, thanks to two big windows that look out on front and side lawns.

Downstairs, there's a small lavatory and there are two bathrooms on the second floor. The largest bedroom has a private bath, and a hall bath serves the other two rooms.

Sleeping quarters in this home are master-bedroom size. The two largest rooms have generous closet space.

THE GARAGE is planned to house two cars. This part of the plan can be easily altered, however, for a one-car family.

Exterior of the Rockville has a homey look about it. It's a family house. A covered patio adds charm to the entrance.

This is a house planned for families with an annual income of $8,000 or more a year. The overall width of the house is 62 feet. The first floor plan comprises 1,108 square feet.

Proper Painting Beautifies Home At Little Cost

With simple painting techniques, the homeowner can save money and time and add beauty to every interior.

With milder days here, now is an excellent time for painting.

In either a new or an old house, the homeowner himself can do a quality paint job by observing fundamental rules and by using new methods.

Top secret of a successful paint job is proper preparation of the surface to be painted. It must be clean and free from grease, oil or other foreign matter. Old, loose paint should be removed.

IF THERE are blisters or peeled spots, the surface should be scraped with a putty knife or wire brush and the edges smoothed with sandpaper. All nail holes and cracks should be daubed with paint or linseed oil, puttied, sanded smooth and dusted.

Roller-type applicators help speed the paint job by spreading the paint faster and easier than brushes.

Painting is speeded considerably when the surface to be covered requires no priming coat.

In any paint job, it is poor economy to use inferior paint. High-quality paint covers better and lasts longer on any surface.

Do not thin paint beyond the point recommended by the manufacturer, and avoid painting on damp or excessively humid days.

Best system for covering a wall is to start at the top and work down. Always spread paint in small areas and brush out well in all directions to make an even coat.

Final strokes should be in one direction. The brush should not be dipped into the can more than half its length.

Fireplace bricks discolored by smoke and soot can be cleaned with a stiff brush, dipped into a paste made of water and ordinary kitchen scouring powder. Follow with a clear water rinse.

An exhaust fan in the laundry will remove excess moisture from the air and eliminate paint peeling and other moisture troubles.

AN EXTRA ROOM

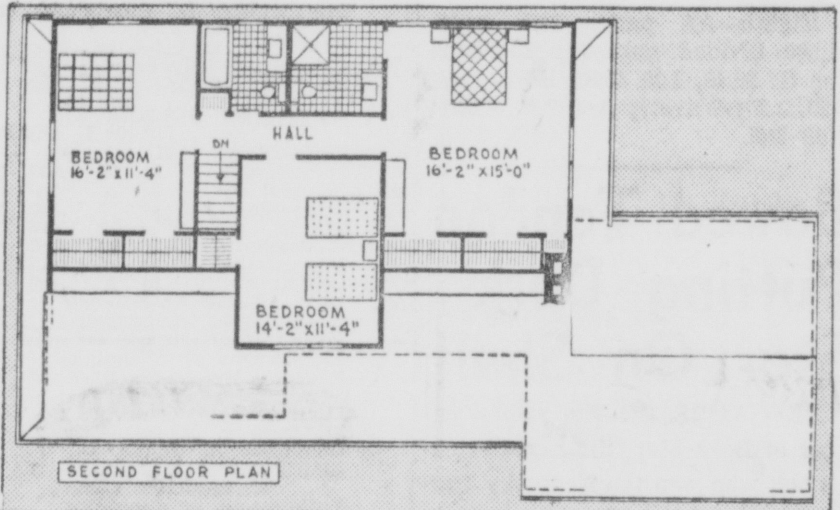

THE ROCKVILLE has a homey, comfortable look. It should, because it was designed for family living. A covered patio at the entrance is a decorative feature that the family and guests will enjoy in Summer. The home is planned for families earning $8,000 or more a year.

THERE ARE SEVERAL special features on the first floor of this home. One of them is an extra room designed to be a den for Dad.

SLEEPING QUARTERS are on the second floor. All three bedrooms are master size. One bedroom has a private bath and two wardrobes.

U-Shape Kitchen Comes Into Favor

The U-shaped kitchen has come into favor because of its allowance for efficient arrangement in the saving of steps.

However, the placement of doors and windows in an individual kitchen and the amounts of wall space available usually dictate the arrangement of kitchen equipment.

A general and flexible rule is to think of each division of appliances, adjacent cabinets and work surfaces as a "work center."

The major work centers of a kitchen are usually around the sink and china cupboards, the range and pan storage compartments, and the mixing and refrigerator area.

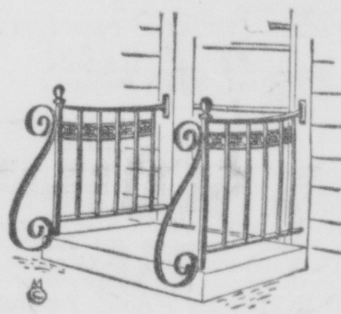

Greatest convenience results when the sink is located between the range and the mixing center.

According to various tests, the mixing center, which includes refrigerator and food storage, is best located near the service door. The refrigerator door should open away from the mixing counter.

Heaters Act As Bombs If Not Checked

The average home owner, cautioned to look for an unsuspected bomb in his basement, would be apt to feel he were being made the butt of a practical joke.

Yet, that is good advice for a potential bomb does exist in many a cellar today.

It looks innocent enough, for it is nothing more or less than the domestic water heater.

When it explodes from overheating, as many do, it rips and tears with the force of dynamite or TNT, destroying property and sometimes causing injury or death.

TRAGIC explosions caused by superheated water heaters are as frequent as they are unnecessary. They result either from a complete lack of temperature and pressure relief valves, or failure to check these safety devices periodically to determine whether they are operating properly.

Water in the heater tank is always under pressure. It has to be, in order to reach various faucet outlets at remote locations in the home.

Many home heaters in use today have become weakened through the normal process of aging. These are the ones most likely to spring a leak permitting superheated water to escape and instantly expand into steam with a sudden, blinding explosion.

If the heater is made of galvanized iron, it flies apart like shrapnel when it explodes.

If it is made of steel, it is likely to soar like a rocket from the cellar clear through the roof.

The best way to guard against a hot water explosion is to engage a licensed master plumber to make a heater installation.

Be sure that pressure and relief valves have been included for safety's sake, and check them periodically for proper functioning against a possible emergency.

Use Cardboard For Paint Guide

A piece of cardboard, such as the cardboard on which a laundered shirt is wrapped, comes in very handy when painting. It can be used to protect the wall, floor, or window glass when painting baseboards, shoe molds, trim, or window frames.

Hold this cardboard against the door, for example, and move it along as you paint the shoe mold and baseboard. You won't have to worry about brush overlaps or drippings.

Or you can use masking tape, which is made for such purposes and easily pulled up after using.

NEW YORK (AP)—The racing career of Dark Star, the rags-to-riches colt who won the Kentucky Derby in one of the biggest upsets in the history of the run for the roses, came to an abrupt end this night, the result of an injury to his right foreleg.

Owner Harry F. Guggenheim, who bought Dark Star for $6,500 in 1951 at the Keeneland Sales where he was shopping for another yearling, said the injury was a bowed tendon suffered in the Preakness last Saturday.

Thus the brown colt, the only horse ever to beat Native Dancer, won't get another chance to whip the Dancer in the Belmont Stakes on June 13. Dark Star was running according to schedule in the Preakness, then suddenly let up at the three-eighths pole and finally finished fifth.

There was an ironic coincidence in Dark Star's retirement. Back in 1945, Polyesian, father of Native Dancer, won the Preakness, with Hoop Jr. second. Hoop Jr. suffered an injury in that race and never ran again.

"We had an indication of the injury Sunday morning after the Preakness," said Guggenheim, millionaire newspaper publisher. "But we wanted to make absolutely certain before making an announcement of this important nature. You can repair a bowed tendon so a horse can race, but they go back on you again."

Delaware Due To Offer Top Racing Purses

Grand Circuit Payoff Totals $150,000 With 'Jug' Leading List

DELAWARE — Purses will hit an all-time high of $150,000 during the four-day session of Grand Circuit harness racing at the Delaware County Fair this year, H. C. Thomson, racing secretary, revealed today.

Headed by the $60,000 Little Brown Jug 3-year-old pace, this year's Delaware Fair will be staged Tuesday through Friday, Sept. 22-25. The Jug, world's richest racing event, is scheduled for Thursday.

Every day during this year's program will feature one or more events worth at least $10,000. Jug Day will top them all when the secondary feature on the all-pacing card will be the $12,000 Ohio Standardbred Futurity, 2-year-old pacing division.

Opening day attractions will be the Walnut Hall Farm Filly Stakes for 2 and 3-year-old pacers. The 2-year-olds will vie for better than $10,000 while the sophomores will have $7,000 to battle for.

Wednesday's headliners will be the $12,000 Ohio Standardbred 2-year-old trot and the $6,500 Old Oaken Bucket. The latter is the 3-year-old trotting companion number of the Jug.

The trotting versions of the Walnut Hall Farm Filly Stakes will occupy the spotlight on Friday. The

Huffer Wins Batting Title For CHS Team

Roy Huffer collected the batting crown for this year's Circleville High School baseball team.

Huffer paced the Tigers with seven safeties in 30 trips to plate for a .233 percentage. Three of the hits were two-baggers.

Roger Graham posted a percentage mark of .429, although getting to the plate only seven times.

Bob Turner, Ron Bennington and Mike Rooney came in for high-inning and valuable marks during the season.

TURNER TALLIED the most hits of any player during the season, rapping off eight safeties in 35 tries for a .229 average.

Bennington scored the most runs for the CHS'ers by crossing the plate seven times. He was third in batting with seven hits in 31 trips to plate for a .226.

Rooney was the power slugger for the team, driving in eight runs to rank as RBI leader and chalking up a double and two home runs during the season.

In all, Coach Dick Boyd's Tiger swatters tied for second place in South Central Ohio League competition. During the season, the Tigers won three games and lost seven.

The Red and Black baseball crew posted a team batting average of only .181 for the season, averaging 4.9 hits per game and 3.7 runs.

Ranking behind the four top leaders in batting for the season were Bob Rader, Don Skinner, Tom Strawser, Howard Clark, Don Eitel, Tom Elsea, Graham, Joe Hill, Bill Barthelmas and Ralph Jones.

Kiner is the only active National Leaguer to hit 300 roundtrippers. Mize, the aging first sacker of the New York Yankees, collected some in the National and the others in the American League.

"It's a wonderful feeling to hit 300 home runs," remarked the 30-year-old Kiner. "But it would have been a lot nicer if we would have won the game."

The Giants mauled three Pittsburgh pitchers for 12 hits and a 6-3 victory, the ninth in the last 11 games.

Baseball Slated For Court Test

WASHINGTON — The Supreme Court has agreed to say whether organized baseball's "reserve clause" contracts violate federal anti-trust laws.

The ruling was asked by George Earl Toolson, a former New York Yankees farm club player who sought damages because he was placed on the ineligible list and has been unable to play professional ball since 1950. Toolson contended baseball violated the anti-trust law through enforcing the contract clause that reserved his playing rights to the team owning his contract.

That disposes of Jowitz's implication that the money came from Chambers' mother.

Trim On City Annexation Seen Likely

Council Action May Come In Next Meeting

Planning Body Tells Of Benefits Waiting For Added Area

Reminded by the city planning and zoning commission that the next move in Circleville's expansion program is up to City Council, municipal lawmakers Tuesday were reported willing to carry the ball on the next play—but with a change in signals.

Municipal spokesmen said they believe the commission's recommendation for annexation of a large area north of the city would be approved. However, it seems almost certain the area traced by the commission would be reduced considerably before action moves into the petition-circulating stage.

Chairman Bob Adkins of the planning body has emphasized the commission would not object to this. He said the commission had strategic reasons for the manner in which the area was outlined for Council last meeting. At the same time, he said it's only a decision to be taken by the lawmakers if they feel the size of the area should be reduced.

No effort has been made to conceal the fact that certain portions of the area were drawn in a way to sidestep "selfish opposition" anticipated from a few property owners.

THE COMMISSION recommended annexation of a 1,168-acre area, a step that would increase the size of the city by about 80 per cent. Individual councilmen have mentioned sections where this area should be reduced, but emphasized action has to be taken by Council in formal session.

Some of the lawmakers were also expected to renew their criticism of the plan as a whole, claiming efforts should first be made to improve facilities for some neighborhoods already in the corporation. Opponents of this view have already stressed the urgent need for a large area that will lend itself to large-scale housing developments.

It was also said that residents in some sub-standard sections of the city have "shouted for improvements, promised to cooperate in putting them across, and then backed out when the city tried to do something about it."

Although the planning body underlined the need for fast action, there was no indication as yet that Council planned to give the commission's recommendations anything more than regular consideration. Council's next session is scheduled for next Tuesday, but few expected final approval for the important step until the June 16 meeting.

No particular enthusiasm was seen for suggestions that a special meeting be held, or that Council should hold an extra huddle with the commission.

In urging "immediate annexation proceedings" aimed at the large area north of the city, the planning body recommended:

1. HIRING of an attorney by Council to prepare the petition for

WALTER M. KOZICHUK (left), 26, hears U.S. Attorney Frank Parker read a complaint charging him with possession of one of the six gold bullion bars stolen from Idlewild Airport, New York. The bars were valued at $27,000. Kozichuk, a railroad gateman, denied the charge as he was held in $5,000 bail for the Federal grand jury in New York. (International) annexation and handle other preliminary legal steps.

2. Formation of a "commission of responsible and civic-minded business men", by Council appointment, to circulate the petition.

3. That Council act "with the greatest possible haste... to produce ultimately an active, building program within the corporate limits."

4. "That immediately upon the presentation of an annexation petition to the board of county commissioners and their approval obtained thereon, that a resolution adopted by the Council prohibiting the tapping of the sanitary sewer and water mains of the city by the property owners residing outside the corporate limits of the city of Circleville be dissolved, and permission by authority of the water department and service department be reinstated."

5. That the above recommendation be acted upon immediately after petition approval by the county commissioners "and prior to all of the final procedures because of the construction weather limitations and the length of time it will take to finally adhere to all of the legal formalities."

6. That the annexation move be made in conformity with a general master plan, looking to 20 years of city expansion.

Listing benefits to freeholders in the affected area north of Circleville, the planning group said annexation would bring them:

Relief from additional penalties for water and sewer facilities; use of water and sewer facilities "as it will be engineeringly possible"; advantages of fire service; police protection; facilities of the health and service departments; school buses to take their children to and from the city schools; increased property values by virtue of their location in the city; a more favorable rating in the eyes of financial institutions approached for loans; "an increased potential of builders and speculators subdividing lands within the corporate limits"; protection of the planning and zoning commission.

Blackburn Says County To Get Gamma Globulin

Pickaway County Health Department has been notified it will soon receive an initial supply of gamma globulin for use in isolating cases of poliomyelitis.

Instructions for the care and distribution of the blood derivative were received by Dr. A. D. Blackburn, county health commissioner, in an executive order from John D. Porterfield, state director of health.

Immune globulin is widely regarded as one of the most promising weapons against the spread of polio. Its use is rigidly regulated.

In defining those entitled to immune globulin, the state order said it is intended "only for the household contacts of a diagnosed case of polio who are over three months of age but under 30 years. Also, pregnant women of any age."

"HOUSEHOLD CONTACTS" must be defined as those individuals, whether of the same family or not, who live within the same family unit as the diagnosed case. Members of the same family not living at home shall not be eligible for immune globulin.

Under terms of the order, the health commissioner will be responsible for the immune globulin allocated to him by the state department of health and must keep an accurate record of all distributions. Physicians treating specific polio cases will be required to cooperate in this phase of the regulations.

Solon Labels Military Budget Cut 'Invitation To Attack'

WASHINGTON (AP)—Rep. Price (D-Ill.) today termed President Eisenhower's military budget "an invitation for an enemy attack." He called upon Secretary of Defense Wilson to "give reassurance to the American people that defense was the primary objective" in cutting funds for air power.

And influential Senate Democrats, declaring open warfare on administration military policies, aimed at substituting foreign aid cuts for Air Force economies.

Sen. Russell (D-Ga.) and Sen.

Maybank (D-SC) said they will vote within the appropriations committee to cut back Mutual Security Administration funds while opposing a reduction in aviation funds.

Price, an Armed Services Committee member, suggested that "accountants" in the Bureau of the Budget may have overruled Wilson and ignored the Joint Chiefs of Staff in setting the $36,171,288,000 military budget for the year beginning July 1.

The figure is $5,247,128,000 less than former President Truman recommended. But it includes an increase of more than $1 billion for the Army, largely to finance the Korean War.

Price said $919,134,000 was trimmed from naval aviation, in addition to $5 billion slashed from Air Force funds. He said that made the air power cuts about $6 billion. Eisenhower has said that 60 cents of every defense dollar next year will go to the Air Force and the Navy for air power.

Gen. Hoyt S. Vandenberg, Air Force chief of staff, on his return from a trip to South America, said Monday night he attended a meeting of the National Security Council at which the final decision was made to accept proposed fund cuts.

"I was there to answer questions, but I was not asked for my opinion and did not give it," Vandenberg said. "There I neither approved nor disapproved."

He declined immediate comment on the effect of the cuts.

Sen. Russell joined other Democrats

in scoffing at Secretary Wilson's contention that air strength will be built up despite the proposed appropriations slash.

"If Mr. Wilson had found a magic formula by which we can cut our plane building program and still increase our air strength, Congress ought to be told about it," Russell said.

"If he can perform such feats of legerdemain, the logical sequence would be to cut the Air Force requests 10 billion dollars and get twice as much defense."

Maybank said he, for one, isn't going to vote to spend $5.8 billion to supply military and other assistance to U. S. Allies while reducing the amount available to America's own air arm. He said he thinks the MSA program can stand a slash of $2 billion.

Price based his conclusions on a letter from Budget Director Joseph M. Dodge to Wilson, dated May 7. Price said it indicated that Wilson had not shaved enough from the Truman budget to carry out "the administrations stated policies and budget objectives."

The Bureau of the Budget is the President's spokesman on fiscal matters and has the final voice on all budgets before they are sent to Congress.

Price said Dodge's letter raises these questions: "Whether the advice of the Joint Chiefs of Staff has been followed" and "is Secretary Wilson, himself, in full accord with the proposed cuts?"

He added:

"Are we to plan our defense and defense of future generations on the recommendations of accountants, adding machines and computers rather than on the recommendations of men who have spent their entire adult careers in the study of military problems."

"Have we suddenly found out," he asked, "from some mysterious source that Russia also can be covered by penny-pinching efficiency better than it can be by an air force which is equipped to deliver the atomic bomb at any designated target in the world?"

General Assembly Is Given Say In New UN Truce Plan

Soviet Shuns West Bid On Austrian Pact

Moscow Refuses Offer To Attend Parley Set For Wednesday

LONDON (AP)—The Soviet Union has turned down a Western invitation to reopen talks Wednesday on an Austrian independence treaty. President Eisenhower had called for Soviet agreement to such a pact as a sign of the "sincere intent" of Russia's post-Stalin peace talk.

Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Jacob Malik, who also is ambassador to Britain, spurned the Allied offer to reopen the long-stalemate negotiations in a letter to the general secretary of the Big Four's deputy foreign ministers.

The letter was published today in Moscow newspapers and broadcast by Moscow radio.

There was no immediate official reaction to the brusque turn-down in Washington, London or Paris.

Britain on May 11 had asked the other nations concerned with the treaty—the U. S., France and the Soviet Union—to reopen the talks here Wednesday. The deputies have met already 259 times (the last time Feb. 6) during the last five years in unsuccessful efforts to write a treaty which would give Austria complete independence.

MALIK'S REPLY said the Austrian question should be considered "through diplomatic channels by means of a relevant exchange of opinions" but did not specify further what he meant by this.

He said also that the meetings of the Deputy Foreign Ministers on Austria were "not a permanent power organ" and that they should be convened by the Council of Foreign Ministers of the Big Four powers, a group organized at the 1945 Potsdam Conference.

Malik blamed the deputies' failure to agree on the treaty at previous meetings on "the attitude taken by representatives of the three Western powers."

His words echoed a Soviet foreign policy statement in Moscow's Pravda Sunday that "direct responsibility for delaying the settlement of the Austrian treaty problem is borne by the governments of the U. S. A., Great Britain and France."

The U. S., Britain and Russia agreed at a Moscow conference in 1943 not to consider Austria as an

Insurance Setup Proposed To End Fire Cost Deadlock

Sagging hopes for early settlement of the city-townships feud over firefighting costs were given a strong shot in the arm Tuesday by a proposal to utilize fire insurance clauses as part of a new arrangement.

The new plan, admittedly with some kinks but hailed as the most promising peace effort outlined so far, was suggested by neutral sources. Apparently it has not yet been placed before city officials or the Rural Township Fire Association, at loggerheads over a rural fire set up since the old one ended May 7.

Leading citizens, both in Circleville and in the eight townships covered by the Association, have hesitated to have their names associated with mediation proposals for fear their motives will be misunderstood in the touchy dispute. For the same reason, local fire insurance firms have been slow to offer any suggestions toward a solution.

The new proposal would place most of the firefighting costs directly on the individual property owner who finds it necessary to call on the fire department for help. However, supporters of the plan point out the cost would be trivial alongside any individual contract between a rural property owner and the fire department. Several property owners have sought such a contract with the city since the city-association feud began, only to be told it could not legally be done.

UNDER THE new plan, the Association would return its township

Red Romanian Envoy Told To Leave U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States ordered today the "immediate departure" of a Communist Romanian diplomat. It said he tried to blackmail an American citizen into spying for the Romanian government.

The State Department said the diplomat, Cristache Zambeiti, legation first secretary, "attempted to subvert" V. C. Georgescu, a naturalized American citizen of Romanian descent, May 20, in New York.

"The price offered for this collaboration was to be the welfare of Mr. Georgescu's minor sons and their possible restoration to their parents," the department said.

Georgescu's sons, Constantin, 19, and Peter, 14, are still in Romania and have been refused permission to join their parents in the United States.

Georgescu, who was former general manager of Romano Americano, a subsidiary of Standard Oil of New Jersey, in Romania, reported Zambeiti's proposition to the FBI and the State Department.

South Korea Tags Proposal 'Allied Defeat'

Roks Lash At Setup As Reversing Recent Position On POW Issue

SEOUL (AP)—Authoritative South Korean sources today revealed that the secret new Allied truce plan would give the United Nations General Assembly the final say in determining the fate of war prisoners who refuse to return to their Red homelands.

The informants said the proposal handed the Communists Monday in Pannumjon was clearly unacceptable to South Korea. One government official called it "nothing but an Allied defeat by the Communists."

The proposal also incorporates some features of previous plans offered by both the Reds and Allies, said the sources, who would not allow use of their names.

The UN Command, which reportedly requested the news blackout on Monday's truce session, would not comment on the plan. It even refused to acknowledge the offer was made.

Some observers in Tokyo said the Allied proposal possibly is being used as tempting bait to Red China, which has long wanted to get into the UN.

BY ACCEPTING the plan, they said, it would give Red China a toe-

Two Little Ohio Girls Express Hopes, Fears On Year 2003

COLUMBUS (AP)—The hopes and fears for the future of the world were expressed by two little girls from Ohio today.

They wrote what they thought about "Ohio in the Year 2003" for an Ohio School of the Air contest. But their words, expressing the thoughts of millions of other youngsters all over the world, made it seem the girls were doing more than trying to win a prize.

Nancy Jo Riffer of Wilmot, Stark County, an eighth-grader at Beach City School won an Ohio flag from the Ohio Sesquicentennial Commission for these thoughts on the year 2003:

"Our greatest advancement will

Jessie Lovesey of Athens County, a fifth-grade pupil at Sugar Creek School, is only 10. She wrote as though she had a peek into the 21st century. She said with childhood's simplicity:

"Everything is very different since the atomic bomb was dropped back during the Korean War, and practically all the buildings in Ohio were destroyed. Nearly everyone has turned to God, and the churches are crowded on Sunday."

MUSHROOMING SKYWARD, the radioactive cloud from history's first atomic artillery shell whooshes to a height of 30,000 feet over the desolate Nevada proving grounds and ushers in a new era of warfare. Scientists Refusing To Relax After Test

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—The atomic cannon is an established reality today in America's defense plans. Nuclear scientists have compressed the virtual equivalent of a standard A-bomb into a shell only 11 inches in diameter.

These appear to be the principal results of Monday's highly successful first firing of a nuclear shell from the Army's 280 millimeter gun.

But scientists of the Atomic Energy Commission are not relaxing although the tenth and last scheduled test of the 1953 spring series is over. With the plaudits of defense leaders and legislators ringing in their ears, the AEC technicians are discussing plans for still another test within the next month at Nevada Proving Grounds.

Test Director Carroll L. Tyler will not disclose the nature of the experiment under consideration, but indicates there is one more problem Dr. Alvin C. Graves, sci-

Sabres Clip Dozen Migs During Duels

SEOUL (AP)—U. S. Sabrejets shot down 12 Communist Migs and damaged another today, boosting their Mig kills this month to 51, just 12 less than the war's one-month record set last September.

Two sharpshooting pilots bagged two Migs each in savage sky battles high over North Korea.

Maj. James Jabara of Wichita, Kan., the world's first jet ace now serving his second combat tour in Korea, got two and boosted his total kills to nine. Maj. Jack E. Mass of Red Bank, N. J., doubled his score with two Migs.

The war's one-day record is 13 kills, one probably and seven damaged on July 4, 1952. Today's bag was the biggest since May 18 when 12 Red jets were destroyed.

Five Migs were shot down this morning and seven after noon, the Air Force said.

Night-flying B26 bombers wiped out 90 Communist trucks, destroyed a locomotive, seven box cars and a railroad bridge in pre-dawn strikes, the Air Force said.

B29 Superforts smashed a 130-acre troop and supply area north of Hamhung on Korea's east coast and bombed smaller supply dumps in the same area.

Ground fighting dwindled to patrol clashes as the air war mounted in intensity.

Williamsport Asks For County To Help Preserve Law, Order

A cauldron of trouble which has been brewing for many months in the village of Williamsport bubbled over the top Monday night.

Touching off the trouble which brought the problem out into the open was a roteness bombardment of a village official's home.

Deputy Marshal Chester Dyke, appointed to the post about two weeks ago, left home Monday to bring his children to Berger hospital, where they had their tonsils removed.

When he returned home, Dyke discovered his house had been pelted with rotten eggs, many of the missiles containing the bodies of baby chickens.

APPARENTLY feeling the egg-throwing business the last straw, village officials Tuesday called in county authorities in an effort to preserve law and order.

Responding to the call for aid were Deputy Carl Radcliff, Prosecutor William Ammer and Probation Officer Karl Herrmann, who viewed the Dyke home.

Williamsport Mayor William Johnson said the egg-throwing incident was only one of many law-defying atrocities which "gangs" in the village have perpetrated within the last few months.

"It seems the older fellows are agitating this trouble," Johnson said. "They are telling the boys there is nothing the authorities can do to them."

The Mayor added none of his property has been damaged, but he has "put up with much mental abuse" from jeers and name-calling.

A list of the acts of vandalism makes it appear every night is Halloween in the village.

Senate Approves City Court Bill

Circleville's municipal court proposal cleared its last hurdle in Ohio's 100th legislature Monday when the Senate approved the measure with only one dissenting vote.

The Circleville proposal was one of nine muni-court proposals wrapped into a single bill for passage. All of the new city courts are expected to be put into operation on Jan. 1, 1954, replacing mayor and justice of peace courts within the scope of their jurisdiction.

Other cities represented in the bill which the Senate approved are Cuyahoga Falls, Ravenna, Port Clinton, Kenton, Tiffin, Delaware, Sidney and Athens.

Lilibet To Queen, Cradle To Throne

By JAMES F. KING

LONDON (P) — Little Princess Elizabeth and her Uncle David were pals.

It was an exciting event for Lilibet when the dashing Prince of Wales dropped around to her house in Piccadilly, as he frequently did in those carefree days.

Such visits were a welcome escape from the regime of her grandmother, Queen Mary, who believed Elizabeth's training should begin early even though the possibility she ever would be queen seemed remote at the time.

A high-brow concert in Albert Hall came as pretty dull for a 7-year-old girl, even a princess. And when Lilibet began wriggling restlessly in her seat the old queen sternly suggested it was time to go home.

"Oh, no, granny," came the childish protest. "We can't leave before the end. Think of the people outside waiting to see us."

Queen Mary, who would stand for no nonsense, ordered her lady-in-waiting to whisk Lilibet home—and by the back door.

Just before Elizabeth's 10th birthday came the first real turning point, both in her education and in the outlook of those guiding her.

King George V, whom Elizabeth called "Grandpapa England," died.

The little princess broke into fits of weeping on encountering this first crisis of her life. Then other changes came fast—too fast for a little girl not yet 10 to understand.

The casual visits of Uncle David, now King Edward VIII, became less and less frequent, and finally stopped altogether. There was a tenseness around Buckingham Palace which was noticeable even to a child.

Finally, on Dec. 10, 1936, not quite a year after George V's death, she and her sister, Princess Margaret, were told they were moving from the Piccadilly house into the palace.

"What, forever and ever?" exclaimed Lilibet in wonderment.

Edward had abdicated for the love of the American divorcee,

Wallis Warfield Simpson. His blue-eyed niece was now next in the direct line of succession, and destined to be Britain's fifth reigning queen.

The princesses were given an explanation of how their uncle was going away for a long time, perhaps forever. Lilibet was not to see her Uncle David until she was a poised, grown-up girl.

She has never lost her affection for him. Now as queen, she has eased the way for the return of the Duke of Windsor to the good graces of the royal family's court. On his rare visits to England he usually calls at Buckingham Palace. But the duke and his wife, Wallis, will not be at the coronation next Tuesday. It would be against constitutional usage for a sovereign or former sovereign of any state to attend the coronation of a king or queen of England, he has explained.

Elizabeth was only 10 at the abdication.

Already the shadows of World War II were shortening. It was the year that Hitler reoccupied the Rhineland, Mussolini triumphantly annexed Ethiopia and the Spanish Civil War dragged.

The coronation of Elizabeth's father as George VI saw her and her sister Margaret taking a full part in purple robes and coronets.

The education of Lilibet went on under private tutors with a new sense of direction now. Sir Henry Marten, vice-provost of Eton, the chief tutor, reported his royal protegee was systematic rather than brilliant, but "considerate, responsive, ready to be interested or amused."

Elizabeth is perhaps the first British sovereign to study American history. Of course there was emphasis on constitutional history and the Empire, the French and German languages, literature, art and dancing.

She learned to play the piano well enough to tackle Beethoven, Chopin and Schumann competently. She enjoyed American popular music, particularly the records of Bing Crosby and the Andrews Sisters.

World War II brought important changes in the life of the princess, and in the Empire. She was 13 when the war broke out — old enough to get a lasting impression of the bombings and hurried scampings to a bomb shelter.

The princesses were evacuated to Birkhall, near Balmoral Castle in Scotland, and then to Windsor Castle where the danger from bombs was not so great.

Elizabeth and Margaret knitted for the armed forces, dug victory gardens, and set aside a schilling a week from their allowance to buy war bonds.

In the ATS Transportation Corps, the British equivalent of the WAC's, Elizabeth underwent rough training in overalls, and learned to tear down and grease a motor and drive a truck.

One week there were spit-and-polish preparations for an inspection by ranking visitors, who turned out to be the king and queen.

"I have never seen a royal visit from the inside before," she told her parents. "I didn't know so much preparation went into it."

Perhaps Lilibet was thinking of another royal visit she made with her parents to the Royal Naval College at Dartmouth. There a young blond cadet had caught the eye of the 14-year-old princess. He corresponded with her through the war.

It was the beginning of a romance that blossomed into the marriage of the princess and the dashing naval officer, Prince Philip of Greece.

Burglar Steals Cafeman's Trap

DALLAS (P) — After burglars had entered his "Busy Bee Cafe" 25 times in the last four years, G. H. Ford decided there was a good chance they'd come again.

He rigged up his prize 12-gauge shotgun with a string from the trigger to a window.

Police said Ford has reported burglary No. 26.

Loss: One shotgun.

Memorial Day Caution Urged

COLUMBUS (P) — Highway Director S. O. Linzell urges Ohio motorists to "slow down and stay alive" over the Memorial Day week end.

Citing records showing the highest traffic accident record in the last decade set in 1952, Linzell recommended a seven-point car check for each motorist who plans to travel over the week end. It includes brakes, tires, front wheel alignment and steering apparatus, lights, windshield wipers, rear-view mirror position and clear rear window.

Linzell said defective motor vehicles are responsible for one of every 10 traffic accidents. Ohio recorded 17 deaths last Memorial Day.

Rate Hike OK'd

YOUNGSTOWN (P) — A two-judge court has approved a 3.3 per cent increase in water rates which Youngstown and Niles must pay the Mahoning Valley Sanitary District. The boost will be absorbed by the cities, at no additional cost to the consumers.

Ex-Parachutist 'Relaxes' In 11-Story Fall

CHICAGO (P) — A husky ex-paratrooper "just relaxed" when he fell 11 stories from a building under construction Monday and suffered only a broken rib.

"Hey, I must have forgotten my parachute," grinned Thomas Grace, jr., 27, as fellow workers rushed to his aid.

Grace, a pipefitter's apprentice, joking about his fall, said:

"I was in the paratroopers in World War II and I learned how to fall. I twisted my body so my head wouldn't hit. That saved me."

Grace was drilling a hole at the 11th floor of the skeleton building when the handle of the electric drill came off and the vibration tossed him out into space.

At the third floor level his left side smashed against a brick-layers' scaffold.

"I got a look at the faces of some of the bricklayers," laughed Grace. "Boy, were they surprised!" Grace landed between two manholes under construction and missed bricks and rubble in the area.

Near record temperatures were recorded in many cities Monday. Some relief is in sight for tonight with the prospect of thunderstorms.

Mercury Climbing, Divining Rod Debate May End In Test Here

Summer's temperatures edged up toward the dangerous levels Monday, and several local residents almost immediately began to argue the merits of "water witching" claims.

The controversy is an old one that enjoys frequent revivals immediately before and during the hot-and-dry months of the year. Newsworthy touch to the new outbreak here was a proposal that a "strictly impartial" test be arranged locally "to prove some people just don't know what they're talking about."

"Water witching," or use of a divining rod, has long been accepted by some persons as a reliable method of locating underground water, flowing free or through pipes. Also involved in the current debate here is a related method by which, it was claimed, empty metal or tile pipes can be located in similar fashion by using two pieces of bent wire—one in each hand.

In the case of a divining rod, usually a tree branch, it is said to be drawn noticeably toward subterranean water. The two pieces of bent wire, believers insist, will be drawn toward each other when the person holding them is directly above the hidden pipe line.

SEVERAL WHO engaged in the current revival of the argument mentioned the possibility of a showdown test of the idea. Among this group was Councilman John Robinson who wants to locate a pipe on property he owns.

It was not clear whether the councilman believes the pipe has water, hence the decision has yet to be made on whether a tree branch or pieces of wire will be used to find it.

Ralph Leist, Pickaway County Courthouse fireman, is one of many firm believers in "water witching" and the pieces-of-wire system. He readily agreed to select the right person and have him, or her, locate the lost pipe for Robinson.

Leist emphasized everyone isn't capable of concentrating correctly on the "water witching" task.

"You have to have confidence in it," he explained.

Mayor Ed Amey, a bystander who indicated he lacked the necessary confidence, recalled the "witching" system was used to locate underground water at Pickaway Country Club.

He said water was finally located, but only after many dry holes were dug at various spots.

SCOFFERS MAY weaken in their doubts after reading what The New Standard Encyclopedia asserts on the subject. That particular reference source says:

"A divining rod is a forked branch, usually of hazel but sometimes of iron, brass and copper, by which minerals and water are alleged to have been discovered beneath the surface of the earth."

"The rod, when suspended by the two prongs, sometimes between the balls of the thumbs, is supposed to show by its inclination the spot under which the concealed mine or spring is situated."

"The divining rod was known in ancient times and it is clearly described by both Cicero and Tacitus. Other powers are ascribed to the divining rod, and persons, even of some pretensions to scientific knowledge, have been believers in

Motorists who are planning a trip over Memorial Day were urged Tuesday by Police Chief Elmer Merriman to exercise common-sense caution when driving.

He laid particular emphasis on checking the condition of lights, brakes, tires and steering mechanism before undertaking Memorial Day trips.

"A little precaution," he said, "may save motorists the pain and financial loss of an accident over the holiday. Vehicle maintenance is economical—an occasional car check is just about the cheapest insurance a motorist can have."

"Memorial Day," Merriman added, "is the time when we pause to honor all the dead who have given their lives to protect America throughout its illustrious history. But we should also pause on Memorial Day to give some thought to all those who are needlessly killed in traffic accidents."

"A life saved is worth a little extra courtesy, caution and common-sense."

Radioactive Clouds Helping U.S. Industry

Byproducts Now Used To Help Perfect Modern Products

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP)—Radioactive clouds from atomic explosions may frighten some people. But industry is learning to live with the atom and to harness it to the dollar.

Without waiting for the day when atomic energy may run electric power plants, many companies are saving thousands of dollars by using atomic byproducts to perfect new products and new industrial processes. More wonders may be on the way.

New chemical compounds are being found by atomic research, the University of Michigan reports.

Radioactive materials have helped farmers get bigger corn and tobacco yields, have helped doctors find and cure such diseases as hyperthyroidism.

Scientists are now trying to find ways to keep meat from spoiling for months, to make a better tooth paste, to improve livestock feeds, to find new and better insecticides and fungicides, to learn what really happens in the vulcanization of rubber, to study the underground flow of oil and perhaps thus extend the known limits of oil fields.

The Eisenhower administration's decision to cut the atomic budget may not hamper this work too much, as it mostly pays its own way. There are some 1,000 users of radio-isotopes, or radioactive materials, shipped from the Oak Ridge atomic plant, which has about 100 different kinds on sale. The Atomic Energy Commission spends less than one per cent of its budget on this phase.

Radioactive materials are produced by sticking any of a number of things from a hunk of gold to piston rings into the atomic pile for a time.

The resulting radioactive piston ring, for example, then gives off small radioactive particles. The piston ring is put into an engine and wear on the ring can be told quickly and cheaply by draining the oil and measuring its activity.

The radioactive particles act as a tracer. With detecting instruments you can "see" what's happening, where the radioactive particles are going and how fast.

Older methods of finding out about wear in an engine or a costly machine tool required dismantling an engine or machinery and weighing the rings or other parts to find out how much had been lost by friction. The radioactive tracer is faster and much cheaper.

"Just like any other tourist," said Evelyn, "we dream of a houseboat on a lake in Kashmir or lolling on a beach in Bali, and Bali is where I want to go next."

These side journeys have had their moments of excitement. Once Kay was in a car that broke down while going through a vast game preserve in Africa.

"Six of us had to stay there with the windows shut for 18 hours while lions and hyenas prowled around the car," said Kay.

"Yes," said Evelyn. "There was a wealthy stockman in the car, and I don't know why Kay didn't land him before they were rescued. After all, he couldn't get away with all those lions outside."

Neither girl sees her ocean-hopping job as much more dangerous than routine office work. It holds one lure dear to any woman's heart—bargain hunting in far places. All the stewardesses become wizard shoppers.

"You may wear a sweater from Britain, French perfume, jade ear rings from China, gloves from Rome, a suit from Portugal, an evening dress from India, gold jewelry from Lebanon," said Evelyn. "But one thing is darn sure. Your underwear will come from the old USA."

Stewardesses on international flights must speak one foreign language and have two years of college or business experience. But their basic requirement is "to be a good sport, to keep your sense of humor when the going is rough, and to be able to handle people, children as well as grown-ups."

Most of the stewardesses do marry, of course, but their choice is more likely to be a member of a plane crew or the boy back home than a wealthy ticketholder.

The girls are like postmen on their time off. They earn from about $250 to $450 a month and they usually spend their savings on monthlong vacation trips to

Grandma, 78, Gets Diploma, Seeks Career

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP)—"It's never too late to learn," a 78-year-old grandmother exclaimed here just shortly before getting a degree from Huntingdon College and asking for job placement to begin a new career.

More than 60 children, grandchildren, relatives and friends were on hand to see Mrs. Mable Feagin of Union Springs, Ala., attain an ambition she has had for 59 years.

Mrs. Feagin has wanted to finish college ever since 1893, when "a matter of finances" forced her to leave Price's College for Young Ladies, in Nashville, Tenn., after her freshman year.

The little lady finally got her chance to resume a college career in 1950, after rearing four children, sending three of them through college, and working as a home demonstration agent for 20 years. "After being retired from my job at 70," said Mrs. Feagin, "I realized there is an age limit for working, teaching or almost anything else. But there is no age limit for going to school."

Graduate Feagin came through with a high B average for the four years. And her professors called her an "excellent" and "inspiring" student.

"Oh, I have loved studying!" she said. "My glimpses into history and literature and philosophy have allowed me to look back and understand all my years better."

"One Wafex Wafer before each meal" AND AWAY GOES UGLY FAT!

How WAFEX Prevents Overeating, Hunger

According to scientific calculations, one WAFEX wafer has the hunger satisfying capacity of 1 lb. boiled potatoes, or 5 slices white bread, or 4 eggs—yet it contains only 5 calories.

DOCTORS: Send in your professional letter, head for clinical data, reports and professional samples of WAFEX.

WAFEX INC. NEW YORK 31, N. Y.

Yes it's true. You can lose pounds and inches of ugly fat doing nothing more than taking a Wafex Wafer before each meal. No diet is necessary. You take your Wafex Wafer and then sit down and eat until satisfied. Yet Wafex is not a drug. It is a food adjunct—and as harmless as a glass of water.

Here's the Proof

A group of physicians associated with one of New York's largest hospitals tested Wafex on a large group of overweight people. These people were instructed by the doctors not to go on a diet, nor to cut out any special foods, just take a Wafex Wafer before each meal. Excess fat disappeared the very first week—at the end of the test weight losses of 8 to 10 lbs. were obtained. And without any diet—hunger, or ill effects. Electrocardiograms proved no harm to the heart.

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower and Secretary of State Dulles, who take the Russians' peace talk with a grain of salt, have said the Kremlin could demonstrate sincerity by agreeing on an Austrian peace treaty.

But Sir Winston Churchill has been strangely optimistic since Russia's Premier Malenkov last March said he thought peace was possible. Churchill's British government suggested a new Big Four conference on Austria.

Representatives of the United States, Britain, Russia and France have met more than 260 times since the war to work out a treaty—the last time was in February—and the progress made could be stuffed into a thimble.

And because they have never been able to agree, they have occupied Austria since the war. The Western Allies have 25,000 or more troops there, the Russians about 45,000.

So long as Russia has troops in Austria, she has an excuse for keeping some of her troops in Romania and Hungary, too. The reason? To keep open Russian lines of communication, the Kremlin says.

Once a treaty was signed all the Big Four would withdraw from Austria. In that case Russia would have to find another excuse for keeping troops in the two nearby satellites, Romania and Hungary.

For that reason, and because Russia's troops in Austria give her a bridgehead to the West, some Austrian officials have been skeptical the Russians would agree to a treaty any time in the foreseeable future.

Nevertheless the British thought another try was worthwhile. The invitation they sent out was for representatives of the U. S., Britain, Russia and France to meet in London tomorrow to tackle the Austrian problem again.

Churchill went even further by proposing that he and President Eisenhower and Malenkov have a meeting of their own on a raft of other difficulties.

The U. S. was willing to send a representative to the Austrian conference but Eisenhower balked at meeting with Malenkov until the Russians showed by deeds — an Austrian peace treaty would be one — that they wanted peace.

So what the Russians did at the London conference on Austria was going to be watched very carefully. But late yesterday, almost at the last minute before conference time, the Russians coldly rejected the idea.

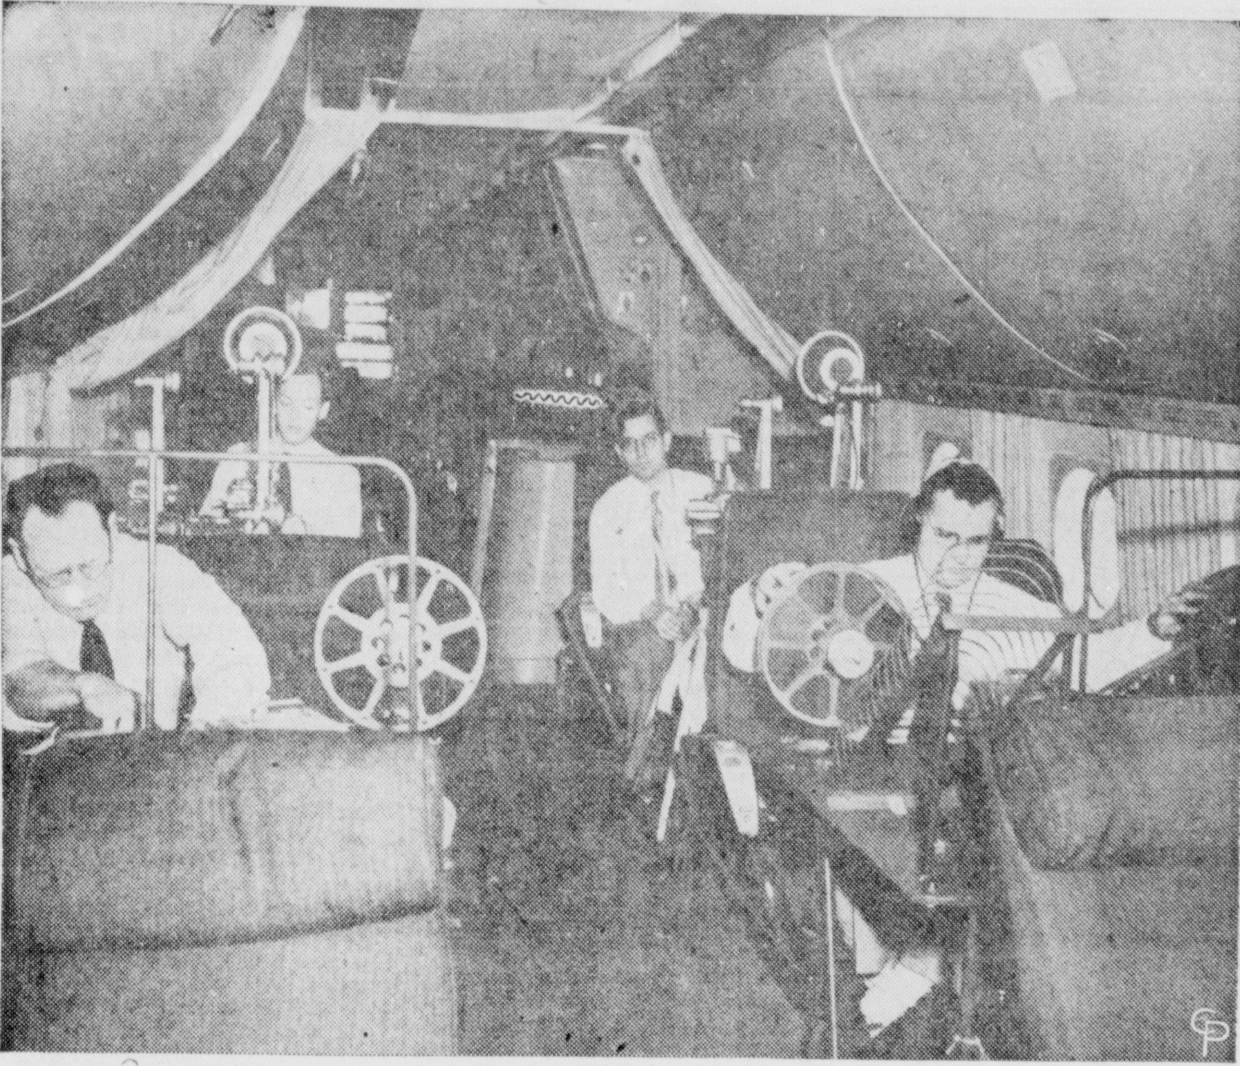

Declining to send anyone to the conference, the Russians, through their ambassador to London, Jacob Malik, said they couldn't see how another meeting on Austria promised any more results than the previous 260 meetings.

This may have thrown into gloom those Western diplomats who shared Churchill's optimism. But it does not cancel out the possibility that tomorrow, or next week, the Russians may make a new, conciliatory move in another direction.

They could offer a concession in a place that means less to them than Austria, even though they had no intention of carrying through on it.

For if they could make those same Westerners, who were deceived by the Russian stand on Austria, jump with hope and eagerness about something else they'd be doing precisely what the Russians seem to be trying to make them do: dance to the Russian tune every time the Kremlin plays one.

It would not be surprising if, to drive a wedge deeper between the U. S. and its Western allies who are more eager to grab at Russian bait, the Kremlin soon offers to do something which means far

Major Problem: What Shade Of Lipstick For The Queen

By DOROTHY ROE
Associated Press Women's Editor

A factor of major importance in the coronation is choosing exactly the correct shade of lipstick for Queen Elizabeth to wear in next Tuesday's solemn and spectacular ceremony, says Thelma Holland, British beauty expert to whom is entrusted the makeup of the queen and most of the peeresses.

Miss Holland, an attractive born in Melbourne, Australia, will discuss the beauty of the young queen in a recorded interview Tuesday on the CBS radio feature, "Family Counselor," a public service.

Foster Awarded Stay From Trial

NEW YORK (AP)—William Z. Foster, American Communist party chairman, has won a new and probably lasting stay from standing trial on charges of conspiracy to teach and advocate violent overthrow of the government.

Federal Judge Sylvester J. Ryan yesterday granted an indefinite continuance in the case after saying a trial might kill the 72-year-old Foster, who has a bad heart.

Ryan's action was based on the findings of a court-appointed physician.

Godfrey Slated To Leave Clinic

BOSTON (AP)—Massachusetts General Hospital officials said today radio-TV star Arthur Godfrey will be discharged as soon as he recovers from surgery performed 11 days ago on his right hip.

Dr. Dean A. Clark, the hospital's general director, said Godfrey also was scheduled to undergo surgery on his left hip, but "the decision has been made to postpone it."

Godfrey suffered multiple fractures of both hips in a 1931 auto accident.

Mother-In-Law Support Shunned

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Actor John Wayne has won a point in his temporary alimony battle with his estranged wife. The judge says he doesn't think Wayne should have to continue supporting his mother-in-law.

Jerome Rosenthal, attorney for Mrs. Esperanza Baeer Wayne, contended yesterday the actor should continue to pay $650 to her mother.

"I don't see how you can expect to force this man to support his mother-in-law when the law does not require him to do so," Judge William R. McKay said after objections by Wayne's attorney.

ice feature of the radio drama "The Second Mrs. Burton."

Miss Holland says of Queen Elizabeth:

"One wishes that she could go all over the world and everyone could see how very beautiful she is. Lovely eyes, and do you know I'm intensely envious of her long eyelashes."

Miss Holland is with the British cosmetics firm, Cyclax, which has provided makeup for English beauties through six reigns. This year she is advising Queen Elizabeth on the makeup that she will wear during the coronation ceremony.

And there's more to this advice that one might think.

In the first place, the makeup on in the early morning by the queen and the other ladies who will take part in the ceremony must be durable enough to last all day long, through the parade, the ceremonies in Westminster Abbey, and the festivities afterward.

The lipstick must be exactly the right color to harmonize with the coronation robes, and to look well both in daylight and in the artificial light of the Abbey. It must show up effectively in color film.

Says Miss Holland:

"We've been asked by the peeresses to make a special lipstick to match their robes, so the makeup will all be in keeping for that great day. This is a rather deep ruby red, with soft undertones. We've discovered that a liquid foundation will last longer than cream and that's one of the things that will be useful."

Most of her appointments, says Miss Holland, are from 6 to 7:30 a. m. on the day of the coronation. A staff of assistants will be dispatched to the homes of the various peeresses before the ceremonies.

Federal Worker Total Declining

WASHINGTON (AP)—The number of federal government workers dropped another 21,700 during April to reach a May 1 total of 2,506,600, the Civil Service Commission reported today.

The commission said most of the cutbacks came among civilians employed by the armed services and in the Economic Stabilization Agency, the economic controls bureau now going out of business. Part of the reduction was offset by a seasonal boost in Agriculture Department payrolls.

250 Watch As Musician Takes Life

NEW YORK (AP)—A jobless musician made his last appearance yesterday before an audience—some 250 curious passersby who watched him plunge to his death a half hour after he killed his wife with a hatchet.

His stage was a roof six stories above Broadway at 184th Street. He shared it with his teen-aged daughter, who had cowered in horror as he killed her mother. The girl then vainly tried to talk him off the roof.

The saxophone-clarinete player, Joseph Dura, 40, brought down the final curtain on his life 10 days after being released from Bellevue Hospital. He had undergone psychiatric examination there following a quarrel with his wife, Wanda 37.

Yesterday the two argued again. The climax of the fight came when he hacked his wife with the hatchet. Their daughter Barbara, 16, witnessed part of the attack and then fled for police.

When she returned, her father was on the roof for his last act. He clutched a television aerial, then loosed his grip and back-flipped from the roof.

THE NEIGHBORS

SUN HAS BROUGHT the neighbors out, supplying a new sense of how cramped winter quarters can be. In winter, the neighborhood is limited by the distance one can sprint without an overcoat to borrow a cup of sugar. The blocks split up into societies of two or three families, each within earshot of the other's radio. And the families exchange hospitality in that curious type of neighborly informality that never achieves intimacy.

The winter neighborhood is precious in its way. The neighbors demand very little—say an emergency loaf of bread—and give much: Their company when friends are so many snowy miles away.

People learn in winter to appreciate neighbors who in general are friends only by propinquity and yet while their lives touch have a loyalty which is perhaps the stronger because it is an attachment rather than a way of life than to a person.

But now the neighborhood has broadened. The small circles join together in the larger circles of shirt sleeves. The bonds of neighborliness loosen as they lengthen. This larger world, freer and less intense, suits the season when nature itself is so full of life that man is no longer thrust inward on his own thoughts.

Loneliness has ceased to be the mood of the land.

SWORDS AND PLOWSHARES

DELIGHTS OF PEACE, so briefly and unsatisfactorily tasted within the last 14 years, were temptingly portrayed by a large, white marine object which last week sailed into New York harbor and to a Hudson River dock.

The uninformed eye would have taken this to be a particularly attractive cruise-ship, gracefully yachtlike in design, of 15,000 tons burden and a passenger capacity not far short of 900. The uninformed eye would have been right. The large, white marine object was the new Italian liner, Roma, now assigned to the transatlantic run.

The informed eye, nevertheless, might have seen in the Roma possibly the biggest war weapon ever beaten, metaphorically, into a plowshare. The Roma, formerly the United States aircraft carrier Atheling, now is a dollar-earner for the dollar-needing Italians. It is a miraculous transformation, both as a feat of marine engineering and as an earnest gesture of what peace, real peace, could be like.

If all the flat-tops could be converted into such a pleasure craft as this, what a fine world it would be.

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

In my researches in the British and American editions of the Earl Jowitt's "Strange Case of Alger Hiss," I have found more than 100 factual errors, a statement which I can at any time document. Some are trivial; some very important. Yet, when one realizes that Earl Jowitt was Lord Chancellor of England, such a number of errors is surprising.

I am taking today a series of errors relating to a $400 loan which was a factor in the Hiss hearings and trials.

Whittaker Chambers bought a car and paid $486 cash. The question is where did he get the money? Four days before Chambers bought the car, that is, on November 19, 1937, Priscilla Hiss, Alger's wife, withdrew $400 from her account in the Riggs National Bank in Washington. In due course, Chambers said Hiss gave him that $400. If Chambers was correct, it sets a date when Hiss and Chambers were on friendly terms, and that mattered in the trial.

Now comes Earl Jowitt with the contention that the entire $400 loan may be a fabrication by the FBI. These are his words:

"...The FBI in the course of their investigations had obtained access to the books of the bank in February, 1949, and at this very time Chambers was in daily association with the FBI. If they had revealed to Chambers that Hiss had withdrawn $400 only four days before Chambers purchased his new car, the significance which Mr. Murphy (now Judge Thomas Murphy) sought to attach to the fact that Chambers had not seen Hiss's pass-book seems to me to disappear altogether."

Again, in another place, he repeats this: "Chambers, for example, had never mentioned the supposed loan of $400 in his evidence before the House Committee or, indeed, until the first trial; and by this time he could have found out from the FBI that Hiss had withdrawn $400 at or about the relevant time—for the FBI had obtained a copy of the account on the 31st January 1949."

The upshot of Jowitt's handling of what he makes very involved and complicated testimony about the $400, and I have six references to it, is, in effect, that the FBI framed that particular piece of evidence to convict Hiss. As Rebecca West put it:

"...This is likely to please the American public just as much as it would please the British public if a judge of the American Supreme Court should write a book about an English cause celebre and casually assert that Scotland Yard had provided the chief witness for the Crown with information enabling him to give perjured evidence."

Actually Mrs. Chambers had testified about this matter on November 17, 1948, two and a half months before the FBI had access to the Hiss bank accounts (January 30, 1949) and the FBI went after the bank accounts after Mrs. Chambers had testified. If, as it is claimed, Earl Jowitt made a thorough study of the transcript of the Second Hiss Trial, it is difficult to understand why he did not check the dates.

In the re-direct examination, during the Second Hiss Trial, Mrs. Chambers answered questions thus:

Misplaced Sex Glands in Boys Should Be Corrected Promptly

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

MANY mothers are upset on learning that their infant or growing sons have misplaced sex glands. This is nothing to conceal or be ashamed of, for these glands are usually capable of functioning normally once the condition is corrected. If this does not happen by itself, the defect should be corrected by a doctor.

In the male, the sex glands (testes) first develop inside the child's abdomen, and later travel down to their special sac, the scrotum. This change takes place in the last month before birth.

Arrested Descent

However, in many cases this development stops before the child is born. We then have an arrested descent, which is a third more frequent in premature infants than full term babies. Usually, the descent completes itself naturally before the child matures.

In certain cases, the descent of the testes to their normal position is prevented, perhaps by adhesions, a narrowing of the path of descent, or some form of glandular abnormality. When this happens, steps should be taken to correct the condition, for a male gland not in its proper location may become sterile, and will not be able to produce sperm for reproduction purposes later on in life.

Later Danger

Male glands not in their proper place also have a greater chance of developing cancer. Rupture, or hernia, also occurs more often in these cases.

Try, Stop Me

A Wall Street financier soon discovered that the stock market was much easier to master than golf. In one round on his home course he tore up so many divots he soon craved bothering to replace them. Returned eventually to the club house, he paid his caddy, remarking wearily, "I'd move heaven and earth to be able to play this darn game!" The caddy observed, "After that round, sir, heaven's about all you have left."

Mae West's alluring line, "Come up and see me sometime," has become so closely identified with her in the public mind that she uses it in nearly every interview she grants. Cruise with Death

SYNOPSIS
The eight guest-passengers aboard the yacht "Spiritus" out of Nassau, Bahamas, are gripped by terror when a shot is fired in the night and their host and owner of the craft, wealthy, eccentric Darius Opdyke is reported missing from the vessel. Sardonic old Jonas, the ship's captain, assembles his passengers in the salon, advising them that Opdyke had a premonition of meeting with foul play on the voyage, and had consequently left his will in Jonas' keeping. The document details the "Spiritus" continue along her course toward South America for seven days, by the end of which period Mr. Opdyke had believed his killer would be revealed. Eagle-eyed Stewardess Macbeth is placed in charge of the women and she watches over them like a jailor. The strain of all this causes senile little Gay Walton, movie actress, to become hysterical and Dr. Reuben Randolph, a psychiatrist, comforts her. Elderly Lady Lisa Tremaine, and Larry Redding, a broker, and Frederick Brown, a lawyer, each admit having quarreled with their host prior to his disappearance.

CHAPTER TEN

RANDOLPH seemed pleased at the discomfort he had caused Brown. "It will be interesting, clinically, to observe the effects of strain on such different personalities." His cold gray eyes went over all of us as if he were hunting for symptoms. No one commented on this unpopular suggestion. The doctor continued suavely, "Now we know just where everyone was except the Captain."

But Jonas was too wise a rat to be caught with such a small piece of cheese.

"I take your meaning, Doctor, and I'll answer you, although I don't know as I should. I was on the bridge where I belonged, like I told you in the first place. And plenty saw me there."

"It don't take a very smart man to figure out that there is something wrong in all these stories. Nobody was around, and everybody was alone. It don't make sense. I didn't kill the old man, and I know it too. You're all hiding something you don't want let out, but before this cruise is over you folks will talk. You'll talk and be glad to. Hez and me'll see to that."

"Are you threatening us?" Robert asked quietly.

"I'm telling you, Mister. I'm just telling you, that's all. His deepest eyes went under the roof of the room as if daring someone to oppose him, but no one did. When he was satisfied that he had the upper hand, he added in a curt way, "Breakfast's ready now, down in the dining salon."

Being ordered around was a new experience for Lisa, and she did not take to it very well.

"I shall just go and wash up first," she said quietly.

"Them as eats, eats right now," the Captain told her. "Fancy notions is out from here on in."

She answered him with the most crushing politeness. "I still say that I shall wash up first." And on the heels of this small defiance, she left the room.

Coffee and eggs put some heart-in us again, as they always will, but conversation was guarded to say the least. Everybody acted as though the person next to him might be a poisoner, and it would be no understatement to say that the atmosphere was actually poisoned with distrust. Solitude, which we had feared, suddenly began to seem better than company. We wolfed down what food we could manage, and gladly escaped from each other to the privacy of our cabins.

Frederick Brown demanded a pot of coffee and said that he would take it to Lisa Tremaine.

The dining salon was forward on B deck. Aft of it came the galleys, and then quarters for the second officer, the engineer, and the steward and stewardess. The guest cabins were all on A deck, four to a side. To port, Brown, Randolph, Carlotta and Larry Redding; to starboard, Gay, Lisa and ourselves. Aft of the cabins, a small reading room gave on the well deck, and across from it, under the poop, lived the "black gang," the oilers and wipers for the engine room. Forward, under the forecastle, lived the sailors. All this was connected with the promenade or veranda deck above, and the salon and Opdyke's cabin, by four stairways, one inside and one outside at each end of the ship.

I mention them to show how easily anyone who did not want to be seen could go up and down or back and forth. Above us all, the incalculable Captain presided from his bridge.

While I dressed in my cabin Robert joined me. I had done as he asked about making notes during the endless night. He read them over and over.

"Do they mean anything to you?" I asked.

"Not yet. But you have a good memory for scenes and conversations. Keep putting them down so that we can reflect on them. It is like the child's puzzles we used to have, where you look at the picture a long time in search of the missing face, and at last it fairly jumps out at you from among the trees."

We all sat looking out of the port-hole. The gray dawn had been followed by a peremptory sun, and the blue water looked tensile as silk except where the flying fish jumped through the surface. The yacht wallowed on, her engines barely turning. She was going nowhere, and getting there very slowly. The absence of seaway made the heat oppressive.

Robert and I exchanged our opinions of the situation, and I was surprised at the depth of his pessimism. I usually go along cheerfully unless someone is actually hitting me over the head, but Robert has Moods. I thought he might be in one now, but he assured me that he was merely taking a realistic view.

He thought Lisa Tremaine was too brave for her own good, and when I said that I admired her, he had the effrontery to suggest that I suffered from the same defect. I said that Mr. Brown reminded me of some big clumsy animal, essentially peaceful, like a hippopotamus for instance, floundering in a net that it felt growing tighter. He answered that there were things he would rather be shut up with than a hippopotamus in a net. I told him I could not make the doctor out, and he said he would bear watching. Oddly enough neither of us mentioned Larry.

The fact was, when you added up the evidence, that anybody could have stood in the dark passageway between the salon and the owner's cabin, fired the shot, and slipped away to come back later looking innocent. It was not a comforting thought.

"I think the Captain did it from the bridge," I said.

"Why not Todd from the port-hole of the cabin?"

"No motive."

"How do you know?" asked Robert drily.

"Do you know what I think?" I inquired. "These people pretended not to know each other when they were introduced, but I think they really do know each other—and altogether too well."

Robert rolled his eyes heavenward and clapped his hand to his forehead. "A Daniel come to judgment!"

"It might be nice," I suggested, "to find the murderer and get the money."

Robert was shocked. "I wouldn't touch the tainted stuff."

"No, but we could keep it for Bobs to fix up Chillstone."

"Now the woman is burying me!"

"There is nothing wrong with thinking about our son."

"I do think of him. I think about him all the time. And I hope to God we will get back to him, and soon. That is why I am going to do everything in my power to get this matter cleared up. My dearest girl, I don't think you realized as yet what a nasty business you may find yourself involved in. But I do beg you, I really beg you, not to mention to anyone but me the man whom you saw throw something overboard before the lights went on."

I was nodding solemnly when the most unholy row broke out above our heads. Scuffling feet, shouting, and Todd's high voice shrilling from the stairs.

"Help! Murder! Help! They are trying to kill each other!"

"A fight!" Robert exclaimed, his eyes lighting up at the prospect as they always do, and with that he let go of me and flashed out of the room. I followed him. There was quite a tableau on the veranda deck.

NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

news behind the news

WASHINGTON, May 25 — The grand, anti-Russian alliance known as the North Atlantic Treaty Organization is now praised by studious members of Congress as a political and military myth, although its first organizer and commander occupies the White House.

After hours of testimony on Capitol Hill by Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, retiring chief of SHAPE, NATO has been written off by his listeners as a solid defense against a Red invasion of Western Europe. This suspicion has been supplemented by public statements of Gen. Alfred M. Gruenther, who will succeed Ridgway in Paris. It also is borne out by confidential reports of touring legislators and businessmen.

RUSSIAN MENACE — American leaders still continue to express optimism over the eventual result of this experiment. But their honest statements belie their professional attitude. Ridgway concedes that the European Defense Community is "terribly inadequate," while Gruenther admits that Russian power is "terribly menacing."

A serious thrust westward by the Red horde would see the nations in its path fall more quickly than they did before Hitler's panzer divisions and his dive bombers. There is no force to stop or even hold them, and there appears to be no likelihood that the squabbling allies will build such a bulwark in the next few years.

SOVIETS UNAFAID — It is post-Stalin internal stress and their enemies' growing dissension which deter the Reds from attack, according to military and diplomatic estimates. It is NOT the fear of any resistance that NATO's thin line could offer on the battlefield or in the air.

To present the picture in its realistic and affrightening framework, it is necessary only to quote Ridgway's warning that "for the United States to try to go it alone would mean inevitable disaster!"

This is the cruel problem which President Eisenhower faces after less than six months in the White House. It also is a situation concerning which the American people need more facts than they now possess.

DISPARITY — Despite the expenditure of billions at home and abroad, the disparity between the exists in every category of weapons and supplies in every field of combat. Nor is there any prospect of narrowing it, in view of sagging morale, political differences and proposed military economies in the Western world.

The Allies, for instance, have approximately 20 divisions—six American, four British, and ten from the French, Dutch and Belgians. But the Anglo-American units are the only ones sufficient equipped for all too brief action. Even they lack ammunition and gasoline, the most elementary needs of a fighting force. They could not fight for more than a few weeks.

MOSCOW PREPARES — They are hopelessly deficient in modern planes, tanks and artillery. There are only twelve Sabre jets on our Western front, although they are our only type capable of defeating the Russian Mig's. The pipelines and supply dumps required to feed a mechanized army are not completed, due to a combination of French red tape delays in shipment from this country and labor shortages.

As against this token organization, Moscow has 175 divisions in readiness. Thirty are stationed in the satellite countries of Eastern Europe, with 22 in East Germany alone. In fast and heavy fighting stuff—planes, tanks, motor vehicles, artillery—they are prepared for an immediate offensive.

GERMANS NEEDED — All our experts concede that only the addition of 500,000 German troops will transform this will-o-the-wisp outfit into an effective army. But Bonn has reluctantly approved the rearming treaty, and its validity must still be tested in court. Even if it survives this challenge, it will be several years before a West German force could appear in the field.

In view of Anglo-French eagerness to talk peace with Malenkov, there is a possibility that none of the 14 NATO nations will ratify the treaty, certainly not for a year or more. Their hesitancy derives from the fact that, being on the spot, they know the overpowering strength of the Red war machine and the mythical nature of NATO's military and political structure. Opposing forces is appalling. It

'Nine-Teens' Present Musical Numbers

With tables centered with a large anniversary cake cut in the shape of the map of Ohio with a cardinal iced in red, the theme was set for the noon luncheon and program of the Pickaway County Women's Republican Club held in St. Philip's Episcopal church Monday. Red carnations and Buckeye leaved vases were on either side of the cake and wicker baskets of spring flowers at regular intervals. Large baskets of garden flowers were placed on the stage and the American flag that was spotlighted was kept rippling by the motion of a fan.

To lend atmosphere members taking part in the program were in full colonial dress.

Mrs. Herbert Caldwell, president of the club, presided. Mrs. C. A. Bliss, program chairman, introduced the 'Nine-Teens', nine girls from the Grove City high school who sang several selections under the direction of Mrs. Christine Young. The group of girls have made several television appearances and sing unaccompanied. A colored film on Ohio entitled "Land of Can-Do" with Lowell Thomas commenting was shown and little known facts of Ohio were presented by Mrs. Bliss in her review of "Ohio Builds a Nation" by Samuel Stille.

To clean a cork tile floor, wash with lukewarm or cool soapsuds and rinse. Hardwood floors, shellacked or varnished, should be washed at intervals with warm soapsuds. Rinse and mop dry quickly, never letting the water stand. Wash linoleum at least once a week with warm soapsuds and rinse; wax, if desired. Painted floors should also be washed with warm soapsuds, rinsed and dried quickly. Use a clean, untreated mop daily to keep floors spotless between washings.

Traffic Safety Crusade Urged

The nation's 30 million organized clubwomen were urged to join in the crusade for traffic safety.

That was the appeal of Mrs. J. Howard Hodge, safety chairman of the General Federation of Women's Clubs who pointed out that local women's or parents' Clubs are an effective force for making individuals traffic safety conscious.

"Traffic safety requires grassroots organization which must reach every individual in every community", she said. "The women's club can command the willing hands, feet and 'phoners necessary to spread the crusade personally into every home," Mrs. Hodge said.

The incentive for clubs to organize and promote such safety programs is greater than ever, Mrs. Hodge said. In addition to the personal satisfaction of seeing the community's accident statistics improve, there is a $1,000 defense bond and handsome bronze trophy for the club which creates the most outstanding program each year.

A five-point guide for women's clubs interested in organizing a local program are outlined as follows:

1. - Create a club committee to gather information about the community's safety sore spots from such professional sources as the police traffic department, mayor or local safety council chapter.
2. - Decide whether to focus on a single aspect of traffic safety or on an all-inclusive program.
3. - Coordinate the program with official and private agencies already working for safety. Seek their cooperation.
4. - Consider every medium of community — movies, newspapers, TV and radio station, churches, advertisers, etc. Appoint members of the committee to provide material for these outlets.
5. - Harness the serious business of safety to entertainment activities wherever possible. Barbecues, bicycle rodeos, dances, parades, rallies and stunts make the safety lessons fun to learn.

Four awards will be presented each year to both women's or parents' clubs and to individual women. Entries for the 1953 awards are open through June 30 and should be sent to the National Safety Council, 425 North Michigan Ave., Chicago, Ill.

Comfort, Convenience Are Added By Installing Another Bathroom

The homeowner can install an additional bath in his house at low cost. Increased family comfort and convenience will repay him for the investment, and the re-sale value of the house is also increased.

Some pointers on adding a new bathroom are:

1. Architects recommend all fixtures in the second bathroom be lined up along one wall, back-to-back with a kitchen or existing bathroom wall containing water lines.

This will save on plumbing and carpentry labor. Most older houses have ready-made space in dining alcoves off the kitchen or in an over-sized hall adjoining kitchen or bathroom, making a back-to-back installation possible.

2. A ceiling exhaust fan, vented to an open attic, enables space to be used for a second bathroom which might not otherwise be practical. The fan removes steam faster than a window and will not chill.

3. More storage space is provided by installing a built-in clothes hamper or cabinet under the wash basin. Cost is lowered as finished flooring is not needed under this cabinet.

4. Corner space can be utilized by a floor-to-ceiling built-in with open shelves below, a closed cabinet above.

5. On walls where a conventional cabinet would interfere with traffic, a slant-front cabinet can be installed, angled so that it is deep at the ceiling, shallow at the bottom.

6. Pastel floors show soil less conspicuously than darker shades.

With pastels now replacing dark colors in the home, tile is sought for its high style as well as for its durability and its great resistance to moisture.

7. A pass-through from bathroom to linen closet will cost little and is especially desirable if the bathroom contains washers and driers.

8. A pull-out drawer under the lavatory to be used as a step allows children to reach faucets.

9. Lower bathtubs enable children to climb in and out safely, while tubs with wide rims provide space for mothers to sit while bathing children.

Linoleum Holes

If you have small holes in your linoleum they can be fixed easily. Mix a paste of finely chopped cork and shellac. Allow the paste to harden in the hole. Then sandpaper smooth and touch up with paint to match the color of the linoleum.

Concrete forms made of plywood can be re-used as much as 50 times, builders report.

Spraying Paint Can Be Risky

Spraying quick-drying enamels, lacquers and paints with a vacuum cleaner attachment or other household contrivance is risky business.

Most of the quick-drying finishes contain amyl acetate and other volatile liquids. Their vapors mixed with air set up an explosion potential that can be touched off by sparks in the vacuum cleaner motor.

All paint spraying should be done outdoors if possible.

Otherwise open all windows and doors for thorough ventilation and take every precaution against open flames, such as a pilot light on the kitchen range, sparks, such as those caused by electrical connections, and never smoke.

When using a paint roller on a ceiling it is usually prudent to apply a strip of paint along the edge with a brush to keep the roller away from the walls.

Single Glaze Picture Windows Pose Problem For Cooling Air

Adequate insulation is as important for an air conditioned house as it is to the efficiency of a refrigerator.

Therefore, windows become an extravagance, seriously interfering with their heat loss with economical operation of air conditioning.

Since the best way to insulate windows is to double them, creating an insulating air space between panes, we use storm windows in winter in colder climates.

But to have storm windows up the year-round presents problems. Dust and moisture seep in between the two layers of glass necessitating frequent washing and polishings to maintain clear view.

MODERN DOUBLE glazing ends that trouble. Two panes of clear glass are sealed with a dehydrated air space between them.

No dust, moisture or even air can get into this space. When windows need washing, they need it only on the outdoor and indoor surfaces. The sealed insulating space is permanently clean.

Such double glazing has a double effect.

It not only makes it possible to have large picture windows and window walls without creating heat loss or heat intake problems, but it also actually reduces the load on air conditioning equipment.

Case histories of air conditioned buildings show the use of double glazing makes it possible to reduce the size of cooling equipment, resulting in substantial savings in original costs as well as in operating expenses.

A wet basement can often be corrected by sloping the lawn grade away from the house, so water will drain away from the foundation.

Movable Walls Are Feature Of 'Home Of Future'

How would you like a modern oak floored home in which the interior walls could be moved for rearrangement of rooms without costly changing of permanent partitions?

Donald Lampland, a St. Paul, Minn., lumber dealer, has just such a house. Described by builders who have inspected it as "years ahead of the times," the four-bedroom dwelling was constructed in accordance with advanced concepts of home building.

The new techniques, which effected a saving of 10 per cent or more in construction costs, could be adapted to erection of a home in any price class.

Key to the economy and room flexibility of the St. Paul house is the specially developed roof trussing which permits the weight load of the roof to be borne by the exterior walls and walls of the living-dining room.

Other interior partitions were put into place after installation of the paneled ceilings and the oak floors.

Of attractive redwood, fir and cedar, these walls were fastened firmly at tops, bottoms and sides with nails which were not driven completely home. The nails can be withdrawn easily with a claw hammer and the partitions moved with little difficulty.

Expansion of the house also is possible at relatively small cost.

New Trends Bring Outside Inside House

By ELEANOR ROSS

The day of the large house is undeniably past, and architects and builders are busy finding ways to make the smaller house not only as comfortable as possible but at least to seem larger.

Sitting in on a house building group recently, we noticed that one of the best methods advanced is visually to add the outdoors, utilizing window walls, so that the eye is not halted by a solid wall, thus doing away with the usual boundaries of the conventional room.

To achieve this visual magic successfully, there must be no apparent break between outdoors and indoors, so modern designers, it seems, are utilizing materials inside the house that for years have mostly been used only for exteriors or landscaping.

Looking at a group of houses later, we found that patio or terrace flooring of quarried stone is very apt to be continued right inside the house as flooring for hall, dining or living room and for a game room.

When this is done, the same stone is used in both areas, but usually the outside flooring will be rough in finish and the indoor stone flooring smooth.

AS A MEANS of lowering the actual construction cost of a house as well as to add a new textural interest to the inside, an exterior wall will be carried right through to form an indoor wall that will house a fireplace. By the use of similar stone for the landscaping outside, the presence of the stone wall inside seems natural and right.

The most delightful building idea we have seen in a long career of looking at houses, is bringing the out-of-doors garden indoors, the ideal way of adding beauty and a spacious look to a living room.

It's the sort of thing that one would expect to find only in a millionaire's mansion, but there it was in a suburban development.

It consists of placing large window boxes indoors at the base of large picture windows, but the results are so charming, it is almost like living in a greenhouse without any of the disadvantages.

In the house we admired, quarried stone had been banked around the base of the window from the floor to the window sill, just as it would be for an indoor garden. The stone "fences in" an area that, we were told, can be from eight inches to as much as 16 inches wide, depending on the room size.

Since there is such a wide variety of stone, a color that fits in with the general decorating scheme can be chosen. The range is from brilliant red to equally bright green, and includes purples, blues, yellows and earth colors as well as buff, eggshell beige and gray.

If the windows look out on a terrace, then a stone similar to that used outside the window would make the illusion of outdoors coming indoors even more vivid.

As for the plantings, these should be of the exotic or casual house plants that can be grown indoors the year around. And looking after the greenhouse garden in the living room will be a major pleasure.

Chalky Plaster

When an old plastered wall becomes so chalky that it is difficult to make wallpaper stick to it, a coat of shellac, which dries quickly, solves the problem and allows the wallpaper to be applied in the usual way.

Electric deodorizers, which blow room air through activated carbon, can absorb and hold as much as 15 per cent of the weight of the carbon in odors and gaseous impurities.

This New Home Will Please All Members Of The Family

Extra Room Makes Place For Dad's Den

Covered Patio Ideal For Young People's Parties

Shown in the accompanying pictures is a home to please all members of the family.

Dad's delight will be the extra room. It's a den, a place where he can retreat to escape chattering teenagers or the weekly visit of the bridge club.

Mother will go for the kitchen arrangement, particularly the snack bar that separates kitchen and breakfast nook.

She'll find it comes in handy when it's time to serve meals or clear dishes away.

AS FOR THE younger members of the family, they'll like the covered terrace—an ideal place to entertain the gang at parties and summer barbecues. It can be reached from garage, den or living room.

These are just a few of the interesting features included in plans for this two-story home.

The architect took full advantage of the layout and has provided spacious activity areas.

The large living room, for example, has a pretty picture window that takes up most of one wall. Two corner windows at the opposite end of the room provide a pleasant view of the terrace. The room has a fireplace, too.

The cozy dining room is a particularly attractive mealtime setting, thanks to two big windows that look out on front and side lawns.

Downstairs, there's a small lavatory and there are two bathrooms on the second floor. The largest bedroom has a private bath, and a hall bath serves the other two rooms.

Sleeping quarters in this home are master-bedroom size. The two largest rooms have generous closet space.

THE GARAGE is planned to house two cars. This part of the plan can be easily altered, however, for a one-car family.

Exterior of the Rockville has a homey look about it. It's a family house. A covered patio adds charm to the entrance.

This is a house planned for families with an annual income of $8,000 or more a year. The overall width of the house is 62 feet. The first floor plan comprises 1,108 square feet.

Proper Painting Beautifies Home At Little Cost

With simple painting techniques, the homeowner can save money and time and add beauty to every interior.

With milder days here, now is an excellent time for painting.

In either a new or an old house, the homeowner himself can do a quality paint job by observing fundamental rules and by using new methods.

Top secret of a successful paint job is proper preparation of the surface to be painted. It must be clean and free from grease, oil or other foreign matter. Old, loose paint should be removed.

IF THERE are blisters or peeled spots, the surface should be scraped with a putty knife or wire brush and the edges smoothed with sandpaper. All nail holes and cracks should be daubed with paint or linseed oil, puttied, sanded smooth and dusted.

Roller-type applicators help speed the paint job by spreading

the paint faster and easier than brushes.

Painting is speeded considerably when the surface to be covered requires no priming coat.

In any paint job, it is poor economy to use inferior paint. High-quality paint covers better and lasts longer on any surface.

Do not thin paint beyond the point recommended by the manufacturer, and avoid painting on damp or excessively humid days.

Best system for covering a wall is to start at the top and work down. Always spread paint in small areas and brush out well in all directions to make an even coat.

Final strokes should be in one direction. The brush should not be dipped into the can more than half its length.

Fireplace bricks discolored by smoke and soot can be cleaned with a stiff brush, dipped into a paste made of water and ordinary kitchen scouring powder. Follow with a clear water rinse.

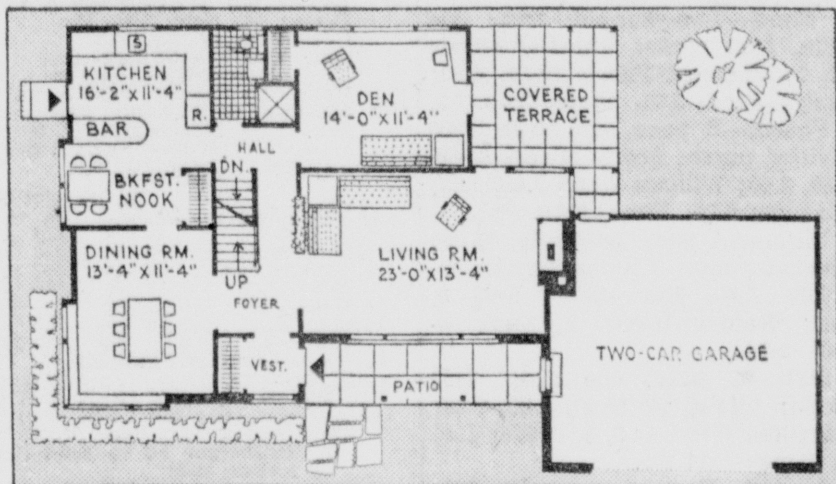

An exhaust fan in the laundry will remove excess moisture from the air and eliminate paint peeling and other moisture troubles.

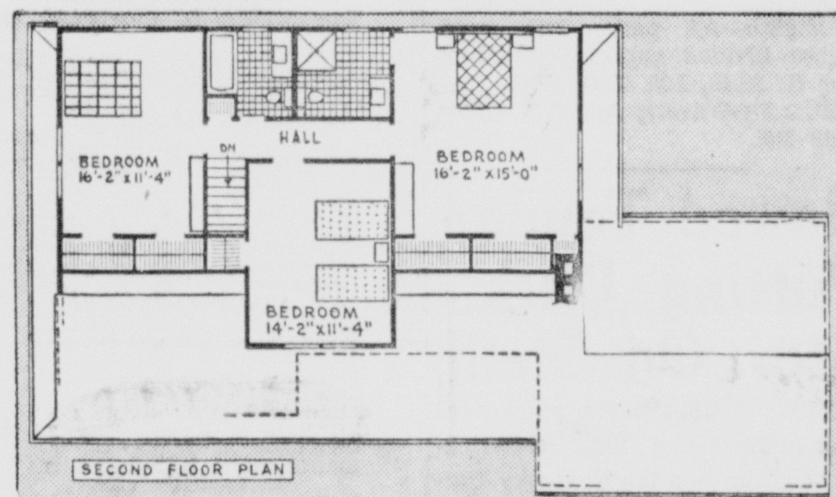

THE ROCKVILLE has a homey, comfortable look. It should, because it was designed for family living. A covered patio at the entrance is a decorative feature that the family and guests will enjoy in summer. The home is planned for families earning $8,000 or more a year.

AN EXTRA ROOM

THERE ARE SEVERAL special features on the first floor of this home. One of them is an extra room designed to be a den for Dad.

SLEEPING QUARTERS are on the second floor. All three bedrooms are master size. One bedroom has a private bath and two wardrobes.

U-Shape Kitchen Comes Into Favor

The U-shaped kitchen has come into favor because of its allowance for efficient arrangement in the saving of steps.

However, the placement of doors and windows in an individual kitchen and the amounts of wall space available usually dictate the arrangement of kitchen equipment.

A general and flexible rule is to think of each division of appliances, adjacent cabinets and work surfaces as a "work center."

The major work centers of a kitchen are usually around the sink and china cupboards, the range and pan storage compartments, and the mixing and refrigerator area.

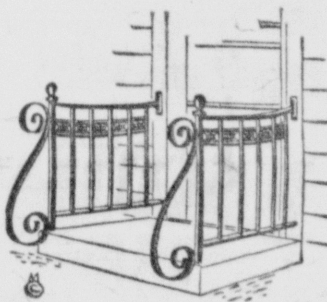

Greatest convenience results when the sink is located between the range and the mixing center.

According to various tests, the mixing center, which includes refrigerator and food storage, is best located near the service door. The refrigerator door should open away from the mixing counter.

Heaters Act As Bombs If Not Checked

The average home owner, cautioned to look for an unsuspected bomb in his basement, would be apt to feel he were being made the butt of a practical joke.

Yet, that is good advice for a potential bomb does exist in many a cellar today.

It looks innocent enough, for it is nothing more or less than the domestic water heater.

When it explodes from overheating, as many do, it rips and tears with the force of dynamite or TNT, destroying property and sometimes causing injury or death.

TRAGIC explosions caused by superheated water heaters are as frequent as they are unnecessary. They result either from a complete lack of temperature and pressure relief valves, or failure to check these safety devices periodically to determine whether they are operating properly.

Water in the heater tank is always under pressure. It has to be, in order to reach various faucet outlets at remote locations in the home.

Many home heaters in use today

have become weakened through the normal process of aging. These are the ones most likely to spring a leak permitting superheated water to escape and instantly expand into steam with a sudden, blinding explosion.

If the heater is made of galvanized iron, it flies apart like shrapnel when it explodes.

If it is made of steel, it is likely to soar like a rocket from the cellar clear through the roof.

The best way to guard against a hot water explosion is to engage a licensed master plumber to make a heater installation.

Be sure that pressure and relief valves have been included for safety's sake, and check them periodically for proper functioning against a possible emergency.

Use Cardboard For Paint Guide

A piece of cardboard, such as the cardboard on which a laundered shirt is wrapped, comes in very handy when painting. It can be used to protect the wall, floor, or window glass when painting baseboards, shoe molds, trim, or window frames.

Hold this cardboard against the door, for example, and move it

Delaware Due To Offer Top Racing Purses

Grand Circuit Payoff Totals $150,000 With 'Jug' Leading List

DELAWARE — Purses will hit an all-time high of $150,000 during the four-day session of Grand Circuit harness racing at the Delaware County Fair this year, H. C. Thomson, racing secretary, revealed today.

Headed by the $60,000 Little Brown Jug 3-year-old pace, this year's Delaware Fair will be staged Tuesday through Friday, Sept. 22-25. The Jug, world's richest racing event, is scheduled for Thursday.

Every day during this year's program will feature one or more events worth at least $10,000. Jug Day will top them all when the secondary feature on the all-pacing card will be the $12,000 Ohio Standardbred Futurity, 2-year-old pacing division.

Opening day attractions will be the Walnut Hall Farm Filly Stakes for 2 and 3-year-old pacers. The 2-year-olds will vie for better than $10,000 while the sophomores will have $7,000 to battle for.

Wednesday's headlines will be the $12,000 Ohio Standardbred 2-year-old trot and the $6,500 Old Oaken Bucket. The latter is the 3-year-old trotting companion number of the Jug.

The trotting versions of the Walnut Hall Farm Filly Stakes will occupy the spotlight on Friday. The

Huffer Wins Batting Title For CHS Team

Roy Huffer collected the batting crown for this year's Circleville High School baseball team.

Huffer paced the Tigers with seven safeties in 30 trips to plate for a .233 percentage. Three of the hits were two-baggers.

Roger Graham posted a percentage mark of .429, although getting to the plate only seven times.

Bob Turner, Ron Bennington and Mike Rooney came in for high individual marks during the season.

TURNER TALLIED the most hits of any player during the season, rapping off eight safeties in 35 tries for a .229 average.

Bennington scored the most runs for the CHS'ers by crossing the plate seven times. He was third in batting with seven hits in 31 trips to plate for a .226.

Rooney was the power slugger for the team, driving in eight runs to rank as RBI leader and chalking up a double and two home runs during the season.

In all, Coach Dick Boyd's Tiger swatters tied for second place in South Central Ohio League competition. During the season, the Tigers won three games and lost seven.

The Red and Black baseball crew posted a team batting average of only .181 for the season, averaging 4.9 hits per game and 3.7 runs.

Ranking behind the four top leaders in batting for the season were Bob Rader, Don Skinner, Tom Strawser, Howard Clark, Don Eitel, Tom Elsea, Graham, Joe Hill, Bill Barthelmas and Ralph Jones.

Kiner, Pittsburgh Pirate outfielder, attained the goal Monday by belting a 1-1 pitch, a curve ball, off Pitcher A. Corwin of the New York Giants in the fifth inning with two teammates aboard.

That gave Kiner the distinction of joining the ranks of 11 others who have hit 300 home runs or more. They are:

Babe Ruth 714, Jimmy Fox 534, Mel Ott 511, Lou Gehrig 494, Joe DiMaggio 361, Johnny Mize 356, Hank Greenberg 331, Ted Williams 323, Al Simmons 307, Rogers Hornsby 302, and Chuck Klein 300.

Kiner is the only active National League player to hit 300 roundtrippers. Mize, the aging first sacker of the New York Yankees, collected some in the National and the others in the American League.

"It's a wonderful feeling to hit 300 home runs," remarked the 30-year-old Kiner. "But it would have been a lot nicer if we would have won the game."

The Giants mauled three Pittsburgh pitchers for 12 hits and a 6-3 victory, the ninth in the last 11 games.

Baseball Slated For Court Test

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Supreme Court has agreed to say whether organized baseball's "reserve clause" contracts violate federal anti-trust laws.

The ruling was asked by George Earl Toolson, a former New York Yankees farm club player who sought damages because he was placed on the ineligible list and has been unable to play professional ball since 1950. Toolson contended baseball violated the anti-trust law through enforcing the contract clause that reserved his playing rights to the team owning his contract.

Michigan State's Tom Yewick likes signal-calling jobs. He is the first string quarterback in football and catcher on the baseball team.

WESTBURY, N. Y. (AP) — Tyler Hanover took the lead coming around the last turn Monday night to win the Inaugural pace, feature of opening night at the Roosevelt Raceway trotting meet.

Cash Kirk jumped off to the early lead but was passed by Favonius Chief at the first quarter. The latter set the pace until Tyler Hanover took over, with Scott Blackstone finishing fast to take second a length back. Cash Kirk held on to third. They went the mile in 2:04.4.

"Q.: When you were examined in Baltimore concerning the purchase of the car, did you know then whether or not you got the money from your mother-in-law or from Mr. Chambers?"

"A.: No. The money was given to me by Mr. Chambers. I did not know then, nor did I know later when I spoke at the deposition, where the money came from.

"Q.: As a matter of fact in the Baltimore deposition you said you did not know where it came from?"

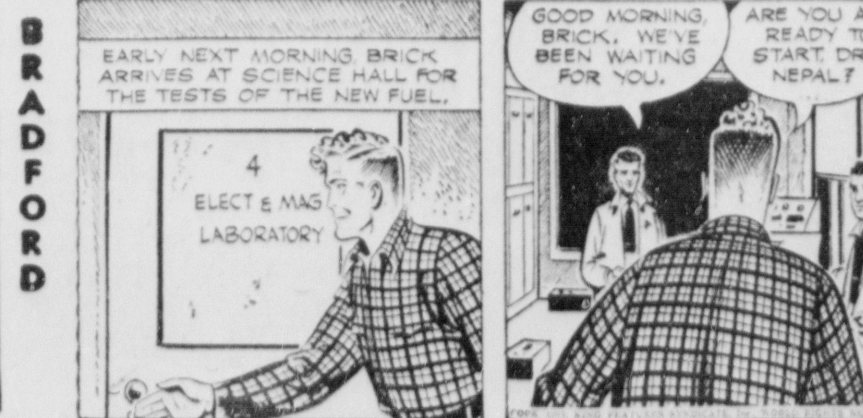

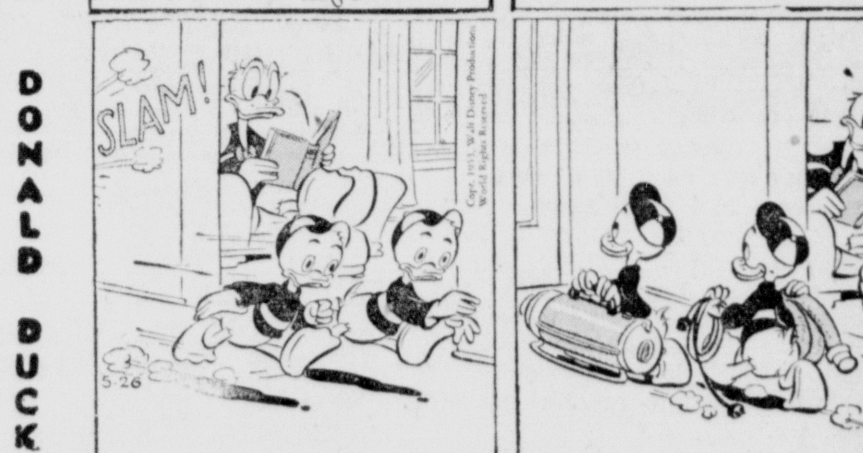

"A.: That is right."

That disposes of Jowitz's implication that the money came from Chambers' mother.

Although the Jowitz book has been withdrawn by its American publishers to correct his errors, the British edition is on sale. It is therefore important to note that the learned barrister must have been incorrectly briefed. This was certainly not an FBI frame-up.

Trim On City Annexation Seen Likely

Council Action May Come In Next Meeting

Planning Body Tells Of Benefits Waiting For Added Area

Reminded by the city planning and zoning commission that the next move in Circleville's expansion program is up to City Council, municipal lawmakers Tuesday were reported willing to carry the ball on the next play—but with a change in signals.

Municipal spokesmen said they believe the commission's recommendation for annexation of a large area north of the city would be approved. However, it seems almost certain the area traced by the commission would be reduced considerably before action moves into the petition-circulating stage.

Chairman Bob Adkins of the planning body has emphasized the commission would not object to this. He said the commission had strategic reasons for the manner in which the area was outlined for Council last meeting. At the same time, he said it's only a decision to be taken by the lawmakers if they feel the size of the area should be reduced.

No effort has been made to conceal the fact that certain portions of the area were drawn in a way to sidestep "selfish opposition" anticipated from a few property owners.

THE COMMISSION recommended annexation of a 1,168-acre area, a step that would increase the size of the city by about 80 per cent. Individual councilmen have mentioned sections where this area should be reduced, but emphasized action has to be taken by Council in formal session.

Some of the lawmakers were also expected to renew their criticism of the plan as a whole, claiming efforts should first be made to improve facilities for some neighborhoods already in the corporation. Opponents of this view have already stressed the urgent need for a large area that will lend itself to large-scale housing developments.

It was also said that residents in some sub-standard sections of the city have "shouted for improvements, promised to cooperate in putting them across, and then backed out when the city tried to do something about it."

Although the planning body underlined the need for fast action, there was no indication as yet that Council planned to give the commission's recommendations anything more than regular consideration. Council's next session is scheduled for next Tuesday, but few expected final approval for the important step until the June 16 meeting.

No particular enthusiasm was seen for suggestions that a special meeting be held, or that Council should hold an extra huddle with the commission.

In urging "immediate annexation proceedings" aimed at the large area north of the city, the planning body recommended:

1. HIRING of an attorney by Council to prepare the petition for

WALTER M. KOZICHUK (left), 26, hears U.S. Attorney Frank Parker read a complaint charging him with possession of one of the six gold bullion bars stolen from Idlewild Airport, New York. The bars were valued at $27,000. Kozichuk, a railroad gateman, denied the charge as he was held in $5,000 bail for the Federal grand jury in New York. (International) annexation and handle other preliminary legal steps.

2. Formation of a "commission of responsible and civic-minded business men", by Council appointment, to circulate the petition.

3. That Council act "with the greatest possible haste... to produce ultimately an active building program within the corporate limits."

4. "That immediately upon the presentation of an annexation petition to the board of county commissioners and their approval obtained thereon, that a resolution adopted by the Council prohibiting the tapping of the sanitary sewer and water mains of the city by the property owners residing outside the corporate limits of the city of Circleville be dissolved, and permission by authority of the water department and service department be reinstated."

5. That the above recommendation be acted upon immediately after petition approval by the county commissioners "and prior to all of the final procedures because of the construction weather limitations and the length of time it will take to finally adhere to all of the legal formalities."

6. That the annexation move be made in conformity with a general master plan, looking to 20 years of city expansion.

Listing benefits to freeholders in the affected area north of Circleville, the planning group said annexation would bring them:

Relief from additional penalties for water and sewer facilities; use of water and sewer facilities "as it will be engineeringly possible"; advantages of fire service; police protection; facilities of the health and service departments; school buses to take their children to and from the city schools; increased property values by virtue of their location in the city; a more favorable rating in the eyes of financial institutions approached for loans; "an increased potential of builders and speculators subdividing lands within the corporate limits"; protection of the planning and zoning commission.

Blackburn Says County To Get Gamma Globulin

Pickaway County Health Department has been notified it will soon receive an initial supply of gamma globulin for use in isolating cases of poliomyelitis.

Instructions for the care and distribution of the blood derivative were received by Dr. A. D. Blackburn, county health commissioner, in an executive order from John D. Porterfield, state director of health.

Immune globulin is widely regarded as one of the most promising weapons against the spread of polio. Its use is rigidly regulated.

In defining those entitled to immune globulin, the state order said it is intended "only for the household contacts of a diagnosed case of polio who are over three months of age but under 30 years. Also, pregnant women of any age."

"HOUSEHOLD CONTACTS must be defined as those individuals, whether of the same family or not, who live within the same family unit as the diagnosed case. Members of the same family not living at home shall not be eligible for immune globulin."

Under terms of the order, the health commissioner will be responsible for the immune globulin allocated to him by the state department of health and must keep an accurate record of all distributions. Physicians treating specific polio cases will be required to cooperate in this phase of the regulations.
